SAVINGS BANK TELLER HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

John H. Cullen, a teller in the Union Institution for Savings, located at Tremont and Lagrange streets, was arrested to-day by the State police, charged with the larceny of $1,200 of the bank's funds.

He was arraigned in the Municipal Court before Judge Wentworth, and was represented by Lawyer Joseph P. Walsh. The prisoner waived the reading of the complaint and his attorney asked that bail be fixed as low as possible.

BAIL BOND IS FIXED AT $1,500 BY JUDGE.

"Does $1,500 cover the entire amount of the defalcation?" Judge Wentworth asked State Officer Keating.

"So far as I know it does," replied the officer.

"Then I'll fix the bail at $1,500," decided the judge. Lawyer Walsh said that bail would be secured later to-day.

Cullen's bond, furnished by the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, fully covers the defalcation, so that the bank will not lose a penny. The bank is reputed as one of the most conservative and one of the soundest of the State.

The bank that Cullen is said to have robbed, after being employed there fifteen years, is one of the most prominent and substantial savings institutions in this city. Many of the Catholic Church funds of the city are deposited in it.

The high cost of living and his inability to make both ends meet with a wife and six children on a salary of $2,000 were given by Cullen as the cause of his defalcations. Recently his salary was raised to $2,200. His thefts covered a period of six years.

Assets Over $9,000,000.

The assets of the bank when the January statement was made were over $9,000,000 and the small shortage will in no way affect the stability of the bank. There may be some investigation as to how he could cover up his thefts for six years successfully.

A pathetic scene took place in Cullen's home at No. 119 Neponset avenue when he was arrested early to-day. It had been hoped that he would escape this punishment—that the loss of his position and a promise to make restitution would save him from paying the legal punishment for his crime. But when Attorney-General Malone heard the facts from Bank Commissioner Chaplin, who had got them from Judge Fallon of South Boston, president of the bank, he ordered Cullen's arrest without the issuance of a warrant.

Pitiful Plea by Children.

When State Officers Keating and Hardiman went to the Cullen house to take the arrest the six children, ranging in ages from eleven to eighteen years, all made a pitiful plea that their father be spared.

"I never passed through such another experience in my life," Keating and Hardiman to-day. "There was the wife and the six children kneeling on the floor and pleading, while tears streamed down their faces, that we should not arrest the man.

"The younger children even fought to prevent us taking him away and it became necessary to place them in another room before we could get the man out of the house. Then we had to silence them, telling them that we were going out only for a walk.

When Cullen walked into court to-day his friends declared that he had aged ten years during the night. He was the picture of a broken-hearted, miserable man. He looked no one in the face and when he spoke it was in a strained voice so low that it was inaudible. A whisper to the man was enough to cause one of his friends to exclaim:

"I would have paid all that out of my own pocket to have saved Cullen this suffering."

Entered Deposits Wrong.

There was nothing intricate about Cullen's thefts. A depositor entered the bank with a book and made a deposit, which was correctly placed in his book. But on the bank's books it Cullen needed money

DETECTIVES HIRED, RUSSELL ADMITS

William C. Russell on the witness stand in the East Cambridge Probate Court today admitted that detectives were working in Dickinson, North Dakota, tracing the record of Daniel Blake, exactly eight days before he gave his consent for the hiring of detectives to work on the case.

While Attorney Simpson, who was cross-examining Mr. Russell, did not show who hired these detectives, the admission following that of cost-day in the day the witness admitted that both Mr. Almy, his sister and others who have testified for the respondent, were present at his first interview with the claimant without such invitation, caused a new surprise in court to-day.

These admissions were brought out by Attorney Simpson to show the influences brought to bear on William C. Russell, which actuated him, so Attorney Simpson claims, in his treatment of the claimant. It was claimed earlier in the trial that Miss Sarah Almy prevented Mrs. Hannah Lynde from recognizing the claimant as her nephew.

Employed Detectives.

Court opened for the continuance of the hearing to-day at 9:45. William C. Russell was cross-examined by Mr. Simpson in regard to the employment of detectives in the case. He was asked:

Q.—When the claimant left Boston last May, did you expect he would ever return? A.—I did not know.

Q.—Did you discuss the matter with any one? A.—Yes.

Q.—With whom? A.—P. B. Almy and Miss Almy.

Q.—What did they say to you about his returning? A.—They had no decided opinion.

Q.—When did it occur to you to engage the Pinkertons? A.—It was suggested to me by Mr. Upton early in May.

Q.—About what date in May? A.—Two or three weeks after the claimant left Boston.

Q.—That would make it about May 20? A.—May 20 or later.

Q.—Where was the suggestion made? A.—By Mr. Upton in Berry & Upton's office.

Inspected Ruseau Letters.

Q.—Who were present? A.—Mr. Upton, Mr. Almy and myself.

Q.—Did Mr. Almy say anything about employing detectives? A.—I believe both made the suggestion.

Q.—Were you advised that a detective agency in reference to you was working in Dickinson, N. D., as early as May 12? A.—No.

Q.—Did Almy reveal to you a discovery he claimed to have made as to the identity of the claimant? A.—Yes.

Q.—By whom and when were you told that the claimant was James Delbert Hussey? A.—I cannot remember.

Q.—When did you first see a photograph of the claimant? A.—In June, 1909.

Q.—When did you first see the Russell letters? A.—In July of that year.

Q.—Do you remember the exact dates? A.—I did it was about late July.

Q.—How long after you turned over the Upton writings to Berry and Upton did you see the Rusell writings? A.—Two or three weeks afterward. (The Upton writings are claimed by Berry and Upton to be samples of the writing of Daniel Blake Russell.)

Q.—About how long a time elapsed after you turned over to Berry and Upton typewritten letters and other samples of the claimant's writing, before you saw those Russell letters? A.—Two months.

Recalls Brother's Injury.

Q.—What did you think about the Rusell letters as compared with the claimant's handwriting? A.—I thought they were the same.

Q.—It is not true, Mr. Russell, that you were assured by someone that they were the same? A.—Yes.

Q.—By whom? A.—Well, by the report of the detectives.

Q.—Do you recall an occasion when your brother was injured while he was working in Boston? A.—Yes, he hurt his leg in 1884 or '85.

Q.—Do you know which leg? A.—No.

Q.—Was the injury above or below the knee? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Did it leave a scar? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Yet Dr. Smith who attended him was compelled to take several stitches in the wound? A.—Yes.

Q.—Dr. Smith is dead. Do you remember whether or not his wife came with him when he treated your brother? A.—I do not know.

Q.—Is there any person living who knows exactly where that wound on your brother's leg was? A.—Mrs. Forney, who is in France.

Q.—Any one else? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Was there a Mrs. Currier working as a maid in your home at that time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where does she live? A.—In Everett.

Old Servant to Testify.

This story of the accident corroborates the testimony to be given by the claimant in his direct testimony.

Attorney Simpson said to-day that he expected to finish the cross-examination of William C. Russell to-day. He also said that he had been approached by several Melrose people who have identified the claimant from having seen him around the court. These people will testify before the court closes. One of these is a former servant in the Russell home.

FARO BANK SWINDLERS IN FLIGHT

Big Bill Keliher, Charles Tibbetts, Martin Walsh and E. S. McPherson of the gang of faro swindlers who took in young George W. Coleman, Cambridge bank wrecker, and other victims to an amount estimated at not less than $1,000, have fled the country.

Keliher and Tibbetts sailed yesterday for Belgium from New York. Martin Walsh, the leader in the gang, is far on his way to South America. His flight to Europe was barred, for years ago he was prohibited aboard any transatlantic steamer, as he was recognized as a professional steamship gambler.

E. S. McPherson slipped away to Cuba. Every man of the gang is placing thousands of miles between himself and Boston, where District Attorney Pelletier is preparing to have them all indicted by the Grand Jury.

Each man of the four has selected a country with which the United States has no extradition treaty. If the Grand Jury indicts them they will be men without a country, for should they ever return to their native land they would be arrested the moment they set foot on the soil and brought to Boston for prosecution.

These are some of the reasons offered by the remaining here and fixing the results of their huge swindling operations whereby so many of Boston's shrewdest business men, including a well-known banker, were fleeced.

Friends of Keliher and Tibbetts say that they have gone to Brussels. At least it is said that's where "Big Bill" was headed for when he fled on the Bonga.

MRS. KELIHER IS BROKEN DOWN BY FARO REVELATIONS

Mrs. William Keliher, wife of William J. Keliher ("Big Bill"), who is accused of being one of the chiefs in the faro swindling game, at her home, Myrtle avenue and Beach road, Winthrop, is suffering from nervous shock due to the charges made against her husband. To an AMERICAN reporter she denied to-day that her husband was en route for Europe.

"The stories printed in the newspapers that my husband has sailed for Europe are not true," she said. "They are absolutely false. I cannot say where Mr. Keliher is. I must keep my mouth shut. I know that my husband would not want me to talk now and I don't intend to do so. No, I will tell you nothing. I will not say when he was home and not where he is now. All this talk and these stories about Mr. Keliher have broken down my health and I am in no condition to say anything at all, and I don't intend to do so."

Here Mrs. Keliher broke down and began to cry bitterly. Not another word would she say.

COLEMAN AIDES HUNTED BY POLICE

Three More Arrests Expected in Cambridge Looting Within Twenty-four Hours.

At least three additional arrests are expected in the next twenty-four hours in connection with the wrecking of the National City Bank of Cambridge.

One of these persons who may be apprehended is said to be a woman. The two others are said to be men who are directly connected with the wrecking of the Cambridge bank.

It is now believed that the wrecking of the bank was the result of a gigantic conspiracy. George W. Coleman, the young $12 a week bookkeeper who got away with money estimated at at least $200,000, is accredited by the officials investigating the case as the head and soul of this conspiracy to strip the bank.

ALL EYES ARE TURNED TOWARD CONSPIRATORS.

These three other arrests may come at any time. They may also come to-night. The officials say not much time lands could be lost.

One thing is known: the conspiracy to loot the bank was successful and it is only a question of time until its completion is one sought.

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier today declared that from the investigation which he has conducted the entire operations of the noted gang of faro swindlers who lifted over $300,000 from George W. Coleman, the young Cambridge bank wrecker, he had learned enough to know that thousands and thousands of dollars had been stolen from business men in and around Boston in these fake gambling.

Several visitors were at the district attorney's office to-day. Edward F. Maine, a lawyer, whose office is No. 97 Cambridge street, West End, living at No. 30 Lenox street, Roxbury, made his appearance at the office of the district attorney. He was there for three-quarters of an hour.

Restaurant Man Loses $4,000.

Maine is one of the faro gang's victims. He two attempts who got to him gave Bobby James as Parker and Wilson. The handed out the usual tale about the great sums of money to be made in breaking a faro bank and that they knew how to do it. This was about two years ago. Maine took the 10 o'clock train in the morning for New York. He carried $4,000 with him—every cent he had in the world. He returned to Boston from New York on the midnight train, penniless. He was not even left the price of a meal.

One of these two men, Parker and Wilson, so said by Maine to have cut out of his clutches. From his descriptions of them they are declared to resemble strongly Charles Tibbetts and Frank E. Marshall.

William McDermott, son of Andrew P. McDermott, had a conference with Mr. Pelletier to-day also. His father is expected to appear at the district attorney's office later and tell the story of how "Big Bill" Keliher fleeced him out of $9,000 in the faro game.

McDermott conducts a saloon in Chelsea square in the West End. The bar is said to be already packing for "Big Bill" at two different occasions as the result of which he was "touched."

"Big Mike" Kelley a Caller.

Chief Police Inspector "Big Mike" Kelley, who knew all about the gambling and saloon gang, and his successor to was the latter, was in the district attorney's office for some time to-day. Kelley has been off the force for some months. While he knew of cases where arrests might have been made, he kept quiet about because they of less place more than six years ago.

One thing only noticeable in the investigation that is being conducted in the district attorney's office is the absence of visitors as glee of the "come on" men of the faro gang differ. No two give the same names. While the names all differ, according to the police, in their nefariousness they are identified with that of Tibbetts, Keliher, Marshall and other members of the gang.

Thugs Active for Work.

It became known to-day that the gamblers on the New York end of the faro combination have sent thugs to this city who followed here last night for the purpose of "ding up" a newspaper reporter who has followed the case from the very beginning and whom, for some reason, the gamblers consider with instigating the present investigation.

These things came here from New York, it is also declared, to intimidate every one known to be here who are "onto" some of the big deals pulled off by the gang.

Lockhart Is Arraigned.

Wilson W. Lockhart of Belmont, chief fore for George W. Coleman, former bookkeeper of the wrecked National City Bank of Cambridge, was to-day arraigned at 10:30 before United States Commissioner Hayes in the Federal Building.

Lockhart, who was cool and perfectly unconcerned, was charged with aiding and abetting George W. Coleman in a bogus

50,000 MAY GO ON STRIKE

NEW YORK, March 4.—A strike of 50,000 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen on all railroads entering New York from as far West as Chicago and as far South as Baltimore, was threatened to-day when the union's president made peremptory demands for substantial increases in wages and a radical change in working rules.

The demands of the firemen and engineers were incorporated in a letter to J. C. Stewart, vice-president and general manager of the Erie Railroad and chairman of the general manager's association representing all the lines entering New York.

Mr. Stewart in an interview declared that he and his associate general managers were quite willing to talk with the firemen, but he intimated plainly that each general manager would confer only with representatives of his own road and not with any committee of the national organization.

ALLDS EXPLAINS A BANK BOOK ENTRY

ALBANY, N. Y., March 4.—In the Conger bribery inquiry to-day Senator Allds was recalled and identified a bankbook showing a deposit of $1,500 in the Albany Savings Bank on April 22, 1901, the day he alleged to have received the $1,000 bribe. He said the money came from Dick Brothers, and admitted he had an account in the Seaman's Bank, New York. Questioned as to his fortune, Allds estimated it at $25,000. He said he owned only one acre of real estate.

TWO NOTED INDIAN CHIEFS FOUND DEAD

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Chief Hot Bum Mah Ji Wa Skung, who signed the treaty of 1866 between the Chippewa Indians and the United States forty-seven years ago, and Chief Ogee Mah Ka Wis Ank, of the Pillager band, were found dead to-day in a room at the Halliday House. Neither of the two chiefs had ever slept in a room lighted with gas before.

UNCLE SAM FORCED TO TRY ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Following a conference with President Taft to-day the chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds announced that a public building bill carrying about $10,000,000 will probably be enacted this session. The avowedly worst has kept the amount to be provided down $20,000,000 below a low water mark for measures of this kind.

WIDOW OF GLOVER IS NEAR COLLAPSE AT WILL HEARING

Showing distinct marks of the ordeal through which she has been passing for four days, Mrs. Lillian M. Glover was called to the witness stand again this afternoon when the Glover will contest was resumed.

Mrs. Glover was paler than at any time since she has appeared in court. There were more rings about her eyes and a weary look in her face as though she had not been able to sleep well. Yesterday afternoon, broken down under the merciless examination of Lawyer John J. Scott, who has not hesitated to dip into every phase of the tragedy in which her husband lost his life.

When the doors of the courtroom opened this afternoon there was a fight among the women to get into the room. Many of those in the struggle were girls in their teens. The amazing revelations of the sordid have caused the interest to grow keen.

"Peculiar Issue," Says Judge.

The case has now taken even a wider range than if it were a murder trial. The lawyers have admitted this in court, and Judge Sanderson declared that he would allow as much latitude in the investigation as possible. When Lawyer Samuel D. Hosmer protested against recalling the death scene in the Glover home, Judge McIntire said:

"It is a very peculiar issue that we are trying. I do not understand the inconsistency of the counsel in this regard or what they are trying to prove; but, much as we may regret having to hear it, if the counsel thinks it relates to the issue which they have made in this case, I think I must admit it."

In her sworn testimony yesterday Mrs. Glover squarely contradicted the testimony that she gave under oath in the Waltham District Court, in Waltham Mrs. Glover testified that her husband and Willie Le Blanc did not quarrel on November 20. Yesterday she testified they did.

This quarrel between Clarence F. Glover and Blanc in Blanc's home house before they met in his laundry and he was shot to death were proved vital disturbance in the unraveling of this mysterious crime. In connection with this the statement in court of to-day is significant.

"We say," said Scott, "that the purpose of the woman was to place him in a predicament so that she could so exercise her influence over him and get him to dispose of his property as would be favorable to her."

PEARY HASN'T YET 'SHOWN' CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—Commander Peary's friends to-day failed to convince the House Naval Affairs Committee that Peary had discovered the North Pole.

Henry Gannett, chairman of the National Geographical Society, and O. H. Tittmann, Superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, both of whom have been among Peary's warmest partisans in the past, personal officials and members of the National Geographical Society, appeared before the committee this morning. The hearing was secret.

The committee was not convinced from the evidence presented that Peary had reached the Pole. During the proceedings Representative Macon of Arkansas, a member of the committee, objected to the meeting being held behind closed doors, and announcing that the public should be admitted, left the room in a huff.

The committee refused to make public anything concerning the evidence submitted by Messrs. Gannett and Tittman, beyond stating that the evidence they gave in support of their belief that Peary discovered the Pollee was not sufficient.

ROOT IN ATTACK ON POSTAL SAVINGS

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Government's credit and the stability of financial and industrial institutions are threatened by the proposal to deposit postal savings bank funds in local banks without giving authority for their investment in Government bonds, according to Senator Root. He made the declaration to-day in a fervent speech on the postal banks.

FIERCE RACE WAR ON IN KENTUCKY

PIKEVILLE, Ky., March 4.—The attempt of a negro to assassinate Marion Cecil, a professional gambler, has brought on a race war. Posters were issued to-day declaring that the negro may not be employed in Pikeville without vengeance. The homes of whites employing negroes will be burned and the negroes will be ordered to leave at once. The negroes took the order with loud threats and open arming.

BASEBALL MEN MAKE WAR ON THE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—The tariff commission is receiving protests from baseball manufacturers throughout the country against the low tariff on baseballs which enable the Japanese to manufacture and export baseballs and undersell the Americans in their own market.

PINCHOT TELLS OF HIS DISTRUST OF BALLINGER

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—Gifford Pinchot, the deposed chief forester, took the witness stand to-day for cross-examination by Attorney Vertrees when the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee resumed its inquiry. Pinchot's direct testimony he declared he distrusted Secretary Ballinger.

Mr. Vertrees began to asking the witness about Pinchot's charges. His own personal knowledge, which showed official misconduct on the part of Mr. Ballinger as Secretary or commissioner in reference to lands in Alaska.

Mr. Pinchot replied that his knowledge of Ballinger's conduct with reference to lands in Alaska came to him principally through the statements of others, including Mr. Ballinger himself.

Referred to His Papers.

Pressed for a more direct answer Mr. Pinchot asked permission to refer to a list of charges which he had prepared against Mr. Ballinger. This permission was granted and after consulting his papers Mr. Pinchot said that his first hand knowledge of Mr. Ballinger's conduct in the matter of the coal claims was confined to Mr. Ballinger's letter of September 15 to the President. This letter Mr. Pinchot contended deceived the President.

Mr. Vertrees then took up Mr. Pinchot's testimony of Friday and Monday, in which the attorney referred to as "solemn and painful" on the part of Secretary Ballinger. "Tell us," said Vertrees, "what you did in that connection?"

Replied Mr. Price Jr., replied Mr. Pinchot, "and asked him to describe what he had done and what Shaw had done. He did so. I told him his action was not different from the point of view of relations between the departments, and I did not approve of it. I subsequently told him a reprimand and it extended to Mr. Shaw, whose activity was that of a subordinate to Mr. Price."

Distrusted Ballinger.

"Really," said Mr. Vertrees, "in your heart you did approve of what he did?"

"I approved of his motive—not of what he did."

Mr. Pinchot said that his relations with Secretary Ballinger were at first "fairly friendly." They had no personal quarrel, he said, except that they differed on important points on the conservative policy.

"We were not particularly friendly," added Mr. Pinchot, "but I distrusted him."

ANNA GOULD GOLD-BRICKED again—Read in the SUNDAY AMERICAN how her millions are being poured out to support her empty title.

PAULHAN TO FIGHT AGAINST "AIR TRUST".

NEW YORK, March 4.—Edwin Cleary manager for Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, who has been virtually driven from this country by the injunction against his flights secured by the Wright brothers, has loosed his thunderbolt against the man birds from Dayton.

"I am aware that this is the day of the trust," said Mr. Cleary. "The trust usually takes in a full-grown industry, but in this country we have two men who would form a trust in flying—two Americans who seek to strangle the science of aviation at its very birth."

Cleary draws the parallel between the treatment accorded the Wrights when they, as unknown inventors, visited France in search of financial aid and the encouragement in the art of flying, and the treatment they have accorded the foremost of French aviators in this country.

He says that the "warping whg" device which is the basis of the injunction against Paulhan is a patent on a method of control, and not upon a mechanical device.

Hurried to Face Courts.

"I see by the papers," said Mr. Cleary, "that Louis Paulhan was chased all over Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma by officers of the law, who were anxious to serve injunction papers upon him. On the 24th of February he went at San Antonio, Tex., preparing for flight. On the morning of that day I received word that an injunction against Paulhan had been granted by the courts. I at once cancelled the day's engagement—at a great financial loss—and came here to New York, bringing Paulhan, the mechanicians and the machines. I have thus shown my respect for the court, and the trip to New York was for the purpose of accepting service of these papers as soon as possible.

"A great deal of stress has been laid upon the point that Paulhan is an aviator. He is no more an aviator than Lafayette. Louis Paulhan to-day wears the blue ribbon of the Academy of Science of France. He was one of the builders of the first great dirigible balloon built in France—the first pilot of that machine. He served this time in the aeronautic department of the French navy. He is the holder of the record for high flight, which stands at 6,185 feet, a record which is acknowledged by the Aero Club of France, of which he and I are members.

Greeted by Summons.

"From the very moment when Paulhan landed in this country—on the gangplank of the French liner which brought him to this country—he was served with summonses to appear in an American court. He was commanded to appear in New York on December 16, when the success of the Los Angeles meet depended upon his presence there on December 10. On advice of counsel he went to Los Angeles and there gave to America the high flights, one of the three aviation records of the world.

"From the time of his arrival in this country until now Paulhan has been hounded by these unwarrantable and unpardonable trespasses, which are in addition to the genial welcome accorded him by the Wright brothers in Paulhan's country."

BANK TELLER STOLE BECAUSE HE COULDN'T FEED EIGHT ON $2,000

at that particular time, he would enter a smaller amount and pocket the difference.

It was when one of the depositors from whom Cullen had stolen money asked to have his book balanced on Monday that the defalcation was found. There was a shortage of $1,000 discovered, after some figuring of various amounts, and Cullen was asked about it.

"Well, boys," he said with a quiver to his voice, "that's up to me. And there's about $200 more. I have been behind in my money and I have been unable to make it up."

This confession caused a shock in the big bank. Cullen went into the treasurer's office and confessed the entire thing, telling how much money he had taken and what he did with it. He said that every cent he had taken had gone to his sisters. He was told of the bank officers' hope that he might be able to make the shortage good. President Pilson talked the matter over with Commissioner Chapin yesterday and the arrest followed. The arrest of Cullen came as a shock to some of the officers of the bank, who hoped that it might be avoided.

A significant fact connected with the arrest of Cullen by officers of the law is that District Attorney Pelletier's father was for a number of years treasurer of the bank and is said to be well known Cullen.

The District Attorney's brother, William A. Pelletier, is second vice-president of the institution having held that position for some years.

Judge Fallon Is President.

Judge Joseph D. Fallon is president of the bank. Thomas J. Kelley is treasurer and Thomas McLaughlin clerk of the corporation. On the Board of Investment are Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, Michael M. Cunliffe, William A. Pelletier, Joseph A. Conniff, Judge Joseph D. Fallon, Edward Reardon and Michael J. Ward.

The bank was incorporated in 1855. For a great many years it has handled the savings of a great many Irish immigrants and has been the savings institution for a great many servant girls.

The last report of the bank as given by the State Bank Commissioners placed the total at $8,387,310.45. This report was made October 31, 1909. The cash on hand at that time was $1,522.49. The deposits on interest were $7,874,062.

The total deposits were given as $8,080,587. The guarantee fund was $405,000 and the profits and loss fund $297,956. The cash on deposit in various banks was as follows: Boston National Bank, $15,465; Commercial National Bank, $11,916; Federal Trust Company, $4,000; Mechanics' Trust Company, $15,512; National Shawmut Bank, $16,805; South End National Bank, $13,302; United States Trust Company, $37,481.

Treasurer Kelley's Statement.

Treasurer Thomas J. Kelley, seen at the bank to-day made the following statement:

"The defalcation amounts to $1,200. There is no question about the amount. No further investigation is necessary to establish those figures.

"John H. Cullen has been connected with this bank for fifteen years. He lives in Dorchester. He is a mighty good fellow. He has a very large family; his expenses have been large, and that has practically kept him close to the grindstone for a long time.

"Cullen's salary was about $2,000 a year. He never spent a cent foolishly, so far as anybody knows, and we know him well. There was never any such thing as his living a lavish life. He traveled in street cars, so to speak.

"He was never interested in dramatics and appeared in the dramatic offerings given by employees of Boston banking institutions. Cullen, however, had nothing whatever to do with his defalcation.

"Has Admitted Taking Money."

"Cullen is about forty-two years old. He has admitted taking the money and explained the whole situation to us. He wanted to make restitution and tried to make restitution. Why I'd rather pay this $1,200 out of my own pocket than to have that man arrested and have this come out against him."

Judge Fallon of South Boston, who is president of the bank and our attorney, when he learned the facts presented them to Commissioner Arthur R. Chapin. They held a conference over it. We at the bank did not expect any arrest, and are very sorry that an arrest has been made.

"Following the talk between Judge Fallon and Commissioner Chapin the State police were notified and Cullen was arrested. The thing I want to make plain—that is, that $1,200 covers the entire amount of the loss. It amounts to nothing, so far as the stability of the bank is concerned.

"The January report of this bank showed assets totalling $9,345,719. The bank build ing itself is worth $225,000 and the bank owns it."

$34.87 YOUR SHARE OF NATIONAL CASH

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Have you $34.87 in your pocket or in the bank? If you have not you are lacking in the per capita circulation of money in the United States, as shown by the books of the Treasury Department.

The department in reckoning this circulation estimates the population of the United States at 87,853,000 and announces the amount of money in circulation on March 1 as $3,134,986,250, which if equally divided would give every man, woman and child in the country $34.87. As there is in circulation to-day $49,315,244 more than there was a year ago.

DODGE RELATIVES CONTEST THE WILL

WORCESTER, March 4.—Webster Thayer, counsel for the nieces and nephews of the late Thomas H. Dodge, living in New Hampshire, filed his appearance in the probate court as counsel for the relatives of Mr. Dodge in opposition to the allowance of the will. His will leaves the bulk of the estate to his widow, and provides for the establishment of a fund for the maintenance of a manual training school and children and for a school in Brookline, N. H. These are to be built seventy-five years after the date of his death.

DOCTOR SAYS TOO MANY DOCTORS NOW

In an address before Harvard students Dr. R. C. Cabot said that the field of medicine is overcrowded now, and that he finds evidence in the figures showing a decrease in the number of medical students. Two years of poverty is the lot of every medical graduate, he said. Many of the medical schools in Dr. Cabot's opinion, are below grade, and turn out incompetent graduates.

Frohman to See "Chantecler."

PARIS—Charles Frohman has arrived here from London, especially to see Rostand's "Chantecler," but he won't be able to do so until Saturday, because of the tremendous demand for seats. Mr. Frohman denies the announcement that Rostand's son is to make the English adaptation, and says he probably will not decide up his mind on the subject by Monday. It is believed that Mr. Frohman is negotiating for the new play by Rostand, "The Polish Virgin," which has made a sensation here second to "Chantecler," but he refuses to discuss the matter.

Accused with her are Attorney Pellikoff, Elsie Perler, her maid, and Dr. Nammelt. A flotilla of gondolas and motor boats followed the gondola in which the famous divorcee, her beauty unmarred by two years in prison, was taken to court with her alleged accomplices.

CAN'T SETTLE CAR STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—The prospect of the car company's accepting the arbitration offer to-day was given a very doubtful appearance when George H. "Were the Act effective it would have been resorted to long ago by employers and employes," he said.

RESCUE TOLD BY WIRELESS

NEW YORK, March 4—From over a thousand miles at sea was flashed from the Anchor Line steamship Caledonia today a wireless message telling of the loss of the big steel Russian freight steamship Korea, and of the rescue of her officers and forty-eight men in mid-sea.

The Korea was sighted in latitude 52 degrees 21 minutes north and longitude 28 degrees 19 minutes west on March 1, in the afternoon. She had signals of distress flying. The Caledonia ran close to the Korea and Captain Baxter's men soon had the Korea's officers and crew aboard. As the Caledonia resumed her course it was seen that the Korea was heavily listed to starboard and that it was only the matter of a few hours when she plunged to the bottom.

WALKER AND NASON AT HEARING URGE DIRECT NOMINATIONS MEASURE

Today was direct nominations day at the State House. Speaker Walker of the House, President Treadway of the Senate, Senator Arthur L. Nason of Haverhill, Ex-Senator James H. Valey of Watertown and Ex-Representatives Garcelon of Newton, McIntire of Gloucester and Burr of Dorchester favored direct nominations bills of some sort. Garcelon's advocacy of the principle was the big surprise at the hearing which was held before the legislative Committee on Election Laws in room 240, the largest hearing room at the State House. The attendance was under fifty. "Jerry" Watson's promised crowd failed to appear.

The committee also heard Mr. Valey on his bill for referendum on the question of election of United States Senators by direct vote. Mr. Valey said that this was not a party question, although the Democratic party is unanimously for it. Direct nominations for United States Senators were he said, adopted by twenty-seven States and Massachusetts should not be behind the rest of the union.

Scores Gift Franchise.

He believed that the people would not vote for a great deal of the legislation which is enacted today. They would never have voted as did their Representatives, for the giving away of the valuable franchise in their greatest river, namely the French King Rapids Power Company to control the water power of the Connecticut. That bill went through the House without a roll call. It was discussed in the Senate and passed by one vote. If the people were given the power of expressing their opinion, the latter laws they would get.

Representative Tufts asked if he thought that the people were dissatisfied with their present United States Senators and Mr. Valey replied:

"I do, on account of their attitude on the tariff question."

No one else spoke on this bill. The committee then heard ex-Representative Edward C. McIntire of Gloucester on his bill for direct nomination of Senators and Representatives. Mr. McIntire said that this bill was defeated in the House last year by a vote of 77 to 97. He believed that it would be of more service to the people to nominate by direct vote than by the convention system which leads to the trading for delegates and the thwarting of the will of the voters in the choice of their candidates.

Nason Argues for Bill.

Senator Arthur L. Nason of Haverhill followed Mr. McIntire, speaking for his own bill for direct nominations, which is prefaced by a referendum to the people at the next State election. "Shall nominations for State officers and members of State political committees be made in caucuses or primaries by direct plurality vote?"

"Shall nominations for county officers in this county be made in caucuses or primaries by direct plurality vote?"

If these interrogatories are decided in the affirmative then all provisions of law relating to direct nominations shall apply to such districts or counties.

Senator Nason said: "I introduced this bill because I believe that the popular sentiment is trending to direct nominations, not alone here, but throughout the length and breadth of the country. When 150 members of the House and 14 of the 40 members of the Senate are now nominated by direct plurality vote it seems to me that we can safely consider the extension of this principle to the remaining towns and senatorial districts. The only instance where this principle was extended to any district other than those within the same city was last year when the Governor allowed to become a law a bill to give the direct nomination principle to the Fifth Essex Senatorial District, comprising Lynn, and the towns of Swampscott and Nahant.

Ruled by Machine.

"Last year the McIntire bill was passed by the House and then by a 40p, a complete somersault, the House defeated it at the behest of the machine politicians.

"Personally I believe that vote on the first roll call was an evasion of the real desire of the voters. I believe every one of you here realizes the interest in this question. The authority of this committee is now nominated by direct plurality vote. They talk of the question of veto. I tell you that unless a candidate is an ally of the machine the convention system will cost him a great deal more than the direct primary nominations.

Former Representative Garcelon, who has opposed direct nominations in the past, declared he favors the change as proposed in the Walker bill.

CATTLEMAN KILLS THREE FARMERS

CITRONELLE, Ala., March 4.—Joseph Stokes, charles Goldman and David Gortman, farmers, were shot and killed by Lawrence Odom, a cattleman, at the latter's home, four miles from this place. After the shooting, Odom surrendered to a deputy sheriff at Citronelle, who, fearing mob violence, telephoned Sheriff Bragg at Mobile for assistance.

Odom says the killing was the result of an old feud. He says all parties were armed.

DISCUSSION OF SOCIAL ISSUES FOR CATHOLICS

Archbishop O'Connell is about to inaugurate in Boston a school for the study of social questions. The object of the institution will be the examination of the social problem from the Catholic standpoint. The foundation will be chaste in its sphere of activity; it shall not be held to any one location. No buildings will be needed.

The school is to be conducted through the form of a course of social and economic lectures in different parts of the city by priests and laymen who have made special study of the social issues now before the world.

The plan and scope of the school is set forth in the following articles which appears in the Boston Pilot of this week. Under the head, "School for Study of Social Questions," the Pilot says:

"The Archbishop is about to inaugurate what may be termed a school for the study of the social question from the Catholic standpoint. Realizing the necessity of opening the eyes of the workingmen to the dangers now so prevalent of pernicious principles in the field of social science, he has decided that it is high time that the Catholic Church's point of view should be clearly announced and persistently studied as the only true solution of the whole situation.

"For this reason he called together several of the parish priests of Boston proper and instructed them as to the methods to be carried out in this program. Four consecutive Sunday afternoon meetings of workingmen, beginning with the second Sunday after Lent, will be called together and will be addressed by priests and laymen who have made a serious study of this subject. They will be held simultaneously in the hall of the Catholic Union, St. Augustine's, South Boston, St. John's School, North End, St. Columbkille's School, Brighton, and a hall in St. Joseph's parish, West End.

"It is certain that at the end of this series of conferences and lectures, the workingmen of Boston will have a firm grasp of the basic principles of the social sciences, of the true remedy of the laborer's difficulties, and will be able to set a just value upon the false, shallow and deceitful systems and promises handed out to them by charlatans and irreligious and atheistical teachers."

ANNUAL MISSION FOR NON-CATHOLICS

Th annual mission to non-Catholics will be opened at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Sunday, March 13. The lectures will be given by priests of the Paulonist order. Fathers Carey, Valentine, Alexander and Basil. The services will begin each evening at 7.40 o'clock. They will be continued each evening until Sunday, March 20, except the evening of Saturday, March 19.

'NERVES' LAID TO PEEK-A-BOO GOWNS, LADIES

"If women would wear gowns that could not be designated as 'peek-a-boo,' they would be making a good start in the prevention of nervous disorders."

Women, beware.

The above solemn warning and professional advice is given you by Dr. Grace Peckham Murray, a well-known New York physician.

She charges you nothing, remember, for this prescription.

But look out not in for those peek-a-boos.

The occasion for this warning was a gathering of so many women demanding to know what was the matter with their nerves that the Academy of Medicine was jammed.

Dr. Murray says the whole trouble comes because we have eaten of the tree of knowledge and have been driven from the Eden of muscular serenity into the wilderness of nervous excitement.

Noise and Peek-a-Boo.

"At one time," she said, "it was the man with the most muscle who won; now it is the man with the most gray matter. Conditions will be easier for our children, who have been brought up in the noise and confusion of the great city, but it is most difficult for us who have known quieter times.

"Nervous prostration may be due to the noise of the city, but if women would wear gowns that could not be designated as peek-a-boo, they would be making a good start in the prevention of nervous disorders.

"People no longer go to church on Sunday, but race over the country in their automobiles. Our theatres and operas present complex dramas and even our households are complex.

Bewildering Toilets.

"Our toilet articles are bewilderingly numerous." Our women, who would at one time have laughed at the servile following of fashion, now put on everything recommended by the shopkeeper, baring their arms and necks in the dangerous part of the day, the evening, and wearing corsets to their knees in which they cannot bend. Even culture has become a burden, and there is sure to be a reaction upon the overtaxed human being. We brace our overwrought nerves with the most dangerous stimulants, tea and coffee, and we should beware of them.

"The only thing to do is to go back to the simple life in the country, where we come in contact with mother earth."

Heard at the Police Station.

"Here is a crazy dago, Cap, that I've just run in. He says his name is Pontiy de Leon and that he is looking for the fountain of youth."

"Send him around the corner to get a glass of P. B. lager. It's the same thing."

TAFT HOLDS TO DINNER SMILE

WASHINGTON, March 4.—A year ago last night President Taft dined as a private citizen with the friends who made a trip to the Philippines with him. On the 5th of that meeting he dined as President of the United States and had with him a big company.

In the year President Taft has lost seven pounds in weight. He has dropped from 326 to 319 pounds. In all that time he hasn't lost his temper, and when he put on his dinner suite a year ago last night it was on for keeps and was still at work at the White House dinner last night.

President Roosevelt was considered some talker in his day. But he wasn't a marker to Mr. Taft's first year. In his last year in office—his talkiest—President Roosevelt made 242 speeches. In his first year in office President Taft made 348 speeches.

During the year the President traveled 20,638 miles by rail and 5,000 by automobile. He served more time in Washington than any President, has visited thirty States and two Territories and left the United States to shake hands with President Diaz of Mexico. He has lived three Federal officeholders and appointed 6,917. And he is still smiling.

SISTER CALLS FOR VENGEANCE

EAST DOUGLAS, March 4.—The slayer of my brother must suffer. My love for Charles calls for vengeance, and I want whoever is guilty to suffer the extreme penalty of the law."

This is the statement made today by Mrs. Addie M. Abbott, half-sister of Charles W. Potter, who died on February 23, following injuries which he received while alone at his home on December 28.

Although circumstances tend to show that Potter received the injuries that caused his death by falling out of bed, Mrs. Abbott and a number of his relatives believe that he was attacked while he lay in bed, and so badly beaten as to result in his death.

Mrs. Abbott and the other relatives who believe that Potter was slain, base their belief on the fact that a mysterious stranger was seen leaving the Potter home on the day on which the latter died. The witness to corroborate Mrs. Abbott is Cyrus Millette of Manchaug.

Millette declares that on the day Potter was hurt he saw a man walking through the yard, as if he had just left the Potter home. This man was dressed in dark clothes and wore a soft hat.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The latest indictment against Augustus Heinze was turned over to Judge Holt by Judge Hand in the United States Circuit Court today. Heinze appeared to plead to an indictment, returned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury, and charging misapplication of the Mercantile National Bank funds and violation of the national banking laws. Judge Hand said:

"I have already intimated that there have been enough indictments found against this man, and I see no reason why I should hear another. However, I will send the case before Judge Holt, to see his suggests. I will hear the case on Monday."

BEEF TRUST ENTERS 'NOT GUILTY' PLEA

NEW YORK, March 4.—E. J. Battagale, Jr., resident director of Swift & Co. in Jersey City, pleaded not guilty today to 36 indictments charging conspiracy to raise prices of foodstuffs, and was released in $2,500 bail. Bonds were furnished by the American Bonding Company.

Battagale drew at Orange, N. J. He was represented in court by ex-Senator Robert Hedgerth.

On Monday, Prosecutor Garven announced today, he will go to Trenton to urge the passage of a bill prohibiting the storage of food for more than three months. Later in the week the prosecutor will go to Washington, where he will consult with those in charge of the Department of Justice in regard to the matter.

Governor Fort of New Jersey is taking the first steps to secure the extradition of the 21 millionaire Beef Trust directors indicted by the Hudson County grand jury in the investigation of the combine. This was reported here today on good authority. Governor Fort, it is declared, has been in communication with Governor Deneen of Illinois, and it is believed that the matter of arrest and surrender of the Jersey authorities of the accused men will proceed without delay when the time limit allowed Prosecutor Garven is elapsed.

CARPET MILL GIRL STRIKERS FORM UNION

One hundred girls and women employed at the Roxbury Carpet Mills, who went out on strike last Saturday out of sympathy for nineteen girls who struck for the second time against a reduction of 12½ per cent. in their wages, have organized themselves into a regular trade organization to be known as the Boston Carpet Weavers' Union.

Before returning to work they will present an agreement to Manager Stevens of the Roxbury Carpet Mills, which have been closed down for a week, asking him for a flat scale of wages for all employes connected with their organization.

General Organizer Charles A. Miles of the Textile Workers of America, who came here at the institution of President John Golden, read the ritual of the American Federation of Labor to the girls at a meeting held at the rooms of the Women's Trade League, No. 7 Warrenton street.

Assisting him were President Michael A. Murphy of the Boston Central Labor Union and Frank H. McCarthy of the American Federation of Labor. Speeches on the trade union movement were made by several prominent labor leaders.

TWO LEADERS OF THE GIRL STRIKERS IN CARPET MILLS

CANDIDATE BEGS TO BE DEFEATED

HUBBARDSTON, March 4.—Charles H. Smith, nominated by the town caucus committee for constable, has sent out an appeal to his friends to defeat him at the election. He says his wife is extremely nervous and wants his companionship at home evenings, and for that reason he could never accept a position where he would be suddenly called away from his wife. "There is a chance that I can be elected," said Smith today, "but I don't want the job. I want all my friends if they desire to be still counted as my friends—to vote against me. My reasons for making this plea is that my father is sick, and my wife becomes terribly nervous if I am away from home evenings."

ECZEMA ALL OVER CHILD'S BODY

All Red and Blistery—Itched So She Could Not Sleep and Scratched Till She Bled—Many Treatments Failed—Cake of Cuticura Soap and

HALF A BOX OF CUTICURA CURED HER PERFECTLY

"My little girl had eczema and was cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. It first started with sores and blotches and was all over her body. She was just red all over and would scratch until it would bleed. It itched so that she could not sleep. I used different medicines but without effect. I washed her with Cuticura Soap and then applied Cuticura Ointment, which resulted in a perfect cure. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Ointment. Also, as a toilet soap, there is nothing better for pimples. My face was covered with pimples and now it is absolutely free from them since I used Cuticura Soap. So I am never without Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Etienne Barbe, Plaquemineville, Avoyelles Parish, La., Oct. 8, '09."

OCEAN SEARCH FOR MISSING KEITH YACHT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 4.—A general search of the Atlantic coast from this city to Wilmington, N. C., is being made today for the steam yacht Courier, owned by B. F. Keith, the vaudeville manager of Boston, which has been missing since February 25. It is feared the yacht has met with some serious mishap.

Coastwise vessels and wireless telegraph stations have been notified to begin special search for the yacht and to report to the United Wireless Company if she is found. The Courier left New York early in January in charge of Captain A. Johnson with a crew of eight men. When Captain Johnson sailed he had instructions from Mr. Keith to proceed to Old Point Comfort. Mr. Keith planned to meet the yacht at Old Point and make a Southern cruise.

When he arrived at Old Point by rail with a party of friends nothing had been heard from the Courier. She finally came in four days late and the captain explained that they had encountered heavy weather.

After the repairs had been made Mr. Keith and his friends sailed on the Courier as far as Wilmington, N. C. They met considerable rough weather and at Wilmington decided to get back on land. They boarded a train at Wilmington and proceeded to Jacksonville, intending to meet the Courier here.

The yacht left Wilmington on February 23 and since then nothing has been heard from her. It is feared that she has been crippled in a storm or that she may have met with a worse fate.

EVA TANGUAY IN THE $1,000 BILL CLASS

Of course, one doesn't have to be a member of the Boston Bunco Syndicate to be able to flash $1,000 bank notes. There are others. For instance, the volatile Miss Eva Tanguay of Holyoke.

Miss Tanguay, who is playing with the "Follies of 1909" in Louisville this week, celebrated Clarence Hess, a spy employed at McCauley's theatre, by lobbing him three times with a hatpin. The ungallant Clarence had her arrested and took his scarified anatomy into court to show the judge the extent of his wounds.

According to news dispatches from the Kentucky metropolis today, the pride of Holyoke shed nothing tears in court, quite meeting the adamant heart of Judge Boldrick.

"As this is your first appearance in our court," the judge managed to gasp through his emotions, "I will allow you to go with a small fine of forty beans."

A gind smile illumined Miss Tanguay's face. Opening her gold purse, she produced a yellow $1,000 note and tendered it in payment of the trifling fine. It is a question whether Miss Tanguay or that yellow-back received the most attention. Court officials were awed by the flash of the bank roll and bailiff Bud Moran with a deferential bow, informed Miss Tanguay that he "couldn't change it."

Arrangements were made by her manager for the change and the fines for both himself and the property man were arranged. Then Miss Tanguay of Holyoke fled.

CUMMINGS BREAD PETITION WITHDRAWN

In the Senate today, the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs reported "leave to withdraw" on the petition of John J. Cummings of Beverly that a loaf of bread shall weigh twenty-eight ounces, instead of thirty-two, and that bread shall be sold only in whole and half loaves. The petition of the Massachusetts Association of Sealers of Weights and Measures to discontinue the sale of quarter and three-quarter loaves was also given "leave to withdraw."

OFFICER CRITICISES THE CADET CORPS

Major John Bigelow of Boston, for many years an officer of the famous Tenth Cavalry, U. S. A., made what is construed by many militiamen in Boston to-day as an attack on the First and Second Corps of Cadets when, in an address in Providence last night, he said: "The militia in unity States is composed of old cadet companies and ancient military organizations. These companies are maintained mostly as fads and never ought to be a part of the National Guard. All their members want to do is to wear the uniform.

SAYS G. BERNARD SHAW

LONDON, March 4.—Bernard Shaw, addressing the Eugenics Educational Society at Caxton Hall, advocated among other things the abolition of property and marriage, and the authorization by the State to kill undesirables.

"It is most obvious to everybody," he said, "that before we can begin to breed the human race with the view to its improvement we must go further in the direction of political revolution than the most extreme Socialist now ventures to suggest publicly.

"It is evident that we need the entire abolition of property and marriage as now understood, as a preliminary step. I do not see my way out of that. I have found when addressing audiences on political questions that they immediately get extraordinarily interested whenever I touch upon the subject of marriage and improvement of the human race.

Just Get Rid of Property.

"They already feel that if it is demonstrable that property is incompatible with achieving a high level of humanity property must go, and it is evident that if they could be made to conceive that marriage is also incompatible with reaching that level they would be prepared to consider whether marriage should not go."

Briefly attributing the existence of poverty, ignorance and illness to property, Shaw did not elaborate on this point, merely adding: "Let us get rid of property and we shall get rid of all that."

He then concentrated his remarks on the marriage question. "It was the experience of almost everybody regarding marriage," he said, "that instead of people finding themselves in a natural community of marriageable persons of their own age there were only about three persons within their reach and they did not like any of them. Nevertheless, they had to make the best they could of these three. They were driven into a marriage which consequently hardly ever represented their natural impulse, yet natural impulse seemed to be the only thing which is to be trusted for the improvement of the race."

Mating a Matter of Income.

Dealing at length with this point, Shaw contended that in order to give natural impulse a chance to operate satisfactorily there ought to be a serious effort to make the whole community intermarriageable and to widen the sphere of choice in selection. Eugenic politics should be directed to those ends.

Mating was now mainly a matter of income. A man might see an attractive scrubwoman, but he could not very well marry her. Then he might see a Duchess who would not mind to marry him. In order to improve things the State would have to provide incomes for everybody and see that each person earned his income.

Eugenic politics would, continued the lecturer, tend to the extensive use of the lethal chamber. It would be necessary to revise our views of the sacredness of human life. We should find ourselves committed to the killing of a great many people.

Some would have to be removed simply because it wastes other people's time to look after them. On the other hand we should leave living many people whom we now kill. We should have to get rid of all ideas of capital punishment.

Some Latitude in Crime.

It is right to kill a man who cannot be trusted to go about in society without injuring others, but a man may commit murder and yet be a perfectly safe and desirable citizen afterward. Indeed, it might have been a desirable thing to have removed the murdered man. A man ought to be allowed to commit a certain number of crimes free, as he is allowed to have a certain number of sicknesses.

Answering to marriage Shaw put a hypothetical case. "Suppose property has been abolished, a whole community now free in marriageable and a department of eugenics established. This department, after making experiments might introduce a man to a woman and tell him he must marry her. The man might object that she had a bad temper and he therefore did not wish to live with her.

"The department would reply that her temper was the very reason we wished you to marry her. We think that crossing her temper with your temperament would produce a highly desirable temperament. It seems to me that the most essential of that kind we shall have to make some provision by which women can become mothers without having to live domestically with the fathers of their children."

This drew applause from the audience, whereupon Shaw said: "I notice that my modesty I begin to talk immediately I get a response. I am so gratified with that I confess that I will not try to improve on it, but will sit down."

WOMAN SOUGHT AS AUTO THIEF

While Dr. L. J. Brennan of No. 10 Fairfield street was visiting a patient on Scotia road some person ran away with his auto. A woman who saw the speeding machine make off in that vicinity is thought by the police to be the thief.

FATALLY BURNED THAWING PIPES

PROVIDENCE, March 4.—Jeanette Broadbent of No. 642 Audrey street, who was burned while endeavoring to thaw out water pipes with flaming rags, is dead at the hospital. Her clothing caught fire and she was fatally burned.

PLAN BIGGEST OF EVACUATION DAY EXERCISES

March 17, in Boston, is not only St. Patrick's Day and dear to hearts of the Irish, but it is also Evacuation Day, and dear to the hearts of every patriotic citizen besides the sons of Erin. On March 17, 1776, the British Army under Lord Howe left Boston for good and the ensuing Evacuation Day celebration will commemorate the 134th anniversary of the event.

Evacuation Day in South Boston's day just as much as June 17 belongs to Charlestown. After the battle of Bunker Hill General Washington sent Continental troops to fortify the heights in South Boston. The British, with the recollection of the Bunker Hill fight in mind, wanted no more conflicts around Boston. As St. Patrick drove snakes out of Ireland, so did the game number in South Boston drive the British out of this city.

Greatest Day of All.

The Evacuation Day celebration in South Boston this year promises to be the greatest event ever known there. The committee of the Citizens' Association which has had it in charge has worked for several months in planning events. Observances will begin on the evening of March 16 and continue all day on March 17. General Sherwood and Representative Hobson of "Merrimac" fame and many other men distinguished in naval and military affairs will take part.

There will be a big banquet in Bethesda Hall on the night of March 16 and Chairman Michael J. Mahoney of the Citizens' Association committee will preside, while the toastmaster will be Representative William H. O'Brien and the chaplain will be the Rev. Mortimer E. Twomey, pastor of St. Eulalia Catholic Church, while General Sherwood, Representative Hobson, Governor Draper, Mayor Fitzgerald and others are expected to speak.

School Holiday Wanted.

South Boston people hope that the School Board will allow children in that district a whole holiday and that Dorchester pupils will get a half holiday. In all local schools appropriate exercises will be held on March 16. Colonel Benton and Dr. Harrington have been asked not only to permit the South Boston High School, but the Dorchester High and the English High Cadets, to take part in the parade. All are commanded by the Boston School Regiment.

Lieutenant John Franklin McInness will be chief marshal of the procession and is expects to give the marching order by 9 o'clock. The route of the parade will be Columbia road to Dorchester avenue, Boston, East Fourth and G streets, around Thomas Park, East Sixth, East Broadway, L, East Eighth, East Fourth and N streets to East Broadway. The procession will move down Broadway to D street, countermarch and disband. It is expected there will be 2,500 men in line.

There will be Uncle Sams' regulars in the parade, United States sailors and marines, seventeen companies of the Massachusetts militia, three naval brigade companies, G. A. R. posts and other bodies of Civil War veterans, besides the schoolboy soldiers.

Harvard Students Make Up as "Mutt and Jeff"

"Mutt and Jeff" are the real confectionery infants at Harvard to-day. Their initial showing on the college campus has made them solid with the students, who are clamoring for them to appear on the college green again and go through their repertoire of funny antics as they do on the sporting page of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"Little Jeff," with his "Terry Mc-Govern" stride and tall silk hat, and "Mutt," with the same old cigar butt in his mouth, are still the talk of the university. The news of their decided hit has spread all through Cambridge and everybody wants them to repeat their performances.

"Mutt and Jeff" were at the university a few days ago, and so pleased were the students with "Bud" Fisher's pets that another invitation was extended to the pair to come back and see old John Harvard again.

A big crowd was on hand when they put in an appearance at the college gates, as those who have seen them before wanted to see them again and those who have not seen them heard of them and are just aching for the chance to see these two famous characters in their droll antics.

"Mutt and Jeff" to-day are gentlemen of real flesh and blood and are otherwise known by the names of W. Clark and H. M. Voorhees, both members of the class of 1912 at Harvard, who are being initiated into the H. K. K., the best known fraternity in Harvard. The "stunt" was planned by John Morse, the favorite caterer of the Harvard boys.

JOHN D., INCORPORATED FOR CHARITY, ACQUIRES LEGAL IMMORTALITY

NEW YORK, March 4.—Further insight into the stupendous charity plan of John D. Rockefeller was afforded today by F. T. Gates, one of Mr. Rockefeller's closest advisers, who said that the principal idea of the Standard Oil man in establishing the Rockefeller Foundation was "to avoid the 'dead hand,' to place his fortune in the care of a self-perpetuating, virtually immortal body, and to see that it does not fall into the clutches of a dead hand reaching out from the coffin long after the brain that directed it had passed into eternity."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will head the new institution, and associated with him in the conduct of the Rockefeller Foundation are to be twenty-five other trustees or directors. These, it is said, are to be chosen irrespective of religion, so that the Foundation will be non-sectarian.

An Epoch in History of Charity.

"The public does not seem to comprehend the real idea of the Foundation," said Mr. Gates. "It is not only unique in the annals of charitable undertakings, but it will mark an epoch in the history of them. It is something that no human mind ever conceived and planned to carry out.

"Heretofore practically every charitable bequest had been made for some specific purpose. As the world has progressed, however, and civilization has changed the needs to relieve which the money was bequeathed have passed away. What is the result? The money, owing to the deed of trust under which it was given, cannot be devoted to any other purpose and is held tight in the dead hand.

"The history of benefactions and charities all over the world shows that time and again legislation has been necessary to get this money out of the clutches of the dead hands and to place it where its donor, if he were alive, would desire it to be placed.

Money Always Available.

"Now that is just what Mr. Rockefeller desires to guard against. He wants to place his money in the hands of some organization or virtually immortal body that will ever be ready to give it out wherever and whenever needed and in whatever amounts required.

"If Mr. Rockefeller could live to be 1,000 years old it would not be necessary to create this foundation, because he would always be on hand to give his money to such things and to such causes as he should deem best for the human race; but as he cannot live for ever, as he cannot spend all his money while he is alive, and as his children do not want it, he has decided on this novel plan to carry out his views of the best way to aid the human race.

"The germ of the idea came years ago. For ten years we have looked into the history of charities and benefactions all over the world. We decided at last that the best way to perpetuate it was to practically incorporate Mr. Rockefeller and to make him an institution that should live forever.

Amount Still Unsettled.

"So this Rockefeller foundation was conceived to be chartered by the United States government and to be so constructed as to enable it to fit the needs of all times of each year and of every year and of each and every day in the year, to be always ready to meet humanity, to render aid wherever necessary in any quarter of the globe.

"This is the unique plan of the foundation into the details of which Mr. Rockefeller has woven his genius and wonderful personality and to endow which he will devote his fortune.

"We have no means of knowing just how much Mr. Rockefeller will give to the foundation. That is to be decided by him after Congress has passed the bill to incorporate it. In establishing the philanthropy he has merely formed a basket into which he intends to put the money he desires to give in charity."

ASKS AMERICAN TO FIND HUSBAND

Mrs. Oscar J. Teel has asked the BOSTON AMERICAN to aid her in locating her husband, who has been missing from their home at No. 25 Avon place, Arlington, for about two weeks. The Teels have a four-year-old son. Teel, his wife said, worked as a lasteaker for the Brooks Manufacturing Company on High street, Boston.

The missing man is described as twenty-nine years old, of fair complexion, fifty feet six inches in height and weighing about 135 pounds.

SEIZE "BOB VEAL" ON WAY TO BOSTON

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 4.—State Dairy Inspector Robert R. Kirkland and Chief of Police Perrine of Governeur seized twenty-four bob veal carcasses at Governeur station as they were about to be shipped by Morris Ruderman, a Governeur junk dealer, to C. S. Page of Boston. An investigation is being made and arrests will probably follow.

YOUNG WIFE WHO WAS ATTACKED BY JEALOUS HUSBAND

MRS. MAY HORNE.

GIRL BRIDE IN HOSPITAL, BOY HUSBAND HELD

LYNN, March 4.—Mrs. May Horne, the pretty seventeen-year-old girl who was attacked with a razor by her husband, Thomas Horne, because she had been induced to a party to which he had not received an invitation, lies on a cot in the Lynn Hospital in a serious condition today.

Although her name is not on the dangerous list, she has several severe wounds on her hands and arms and a deep gash in her throat. Unless blood poison develops the physicians hope to save the young woman's life.

Horne is locked up on a charge of assault with intent to kill pending the result of his wife's condition. He is only nineteen years old and is employed as a cooper.

Mrs. Horne worked every day and in the evening it was her custom to go to the home of her husband, who lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Horne, at No. 29 Cottage street, to see their month-old baby, whom Horne's mother cared for during the day.

Following her usual custom she went to the baby last night. Her husband met her in the doorway and barred her for accepting the invitation to a party when she had not been invited. A quarrel followed and the husband, it is alleged, pulled a razor from his pocket, rushed at his wife and slashed the terrified woman several times.

Chief Burckes asked Judge Sisk to hold him under heavy bonds and intimated that $2,500 should be the amount, bail being set at this figure. His case will come up again March 9.

SNOWSLIDE VICTIMS TO TOTAL 150

SEATTLE, Wash., March 4.—Everything indicates that the death list in the vicinity of Wellington may reach a total of 150. Already thirty-seven bodies have been recovered and desperate efforts are being made to reach the corpses which are believed to be piled up in the gorge southbelow. With the masses of snow and ice rising mountain high and interwoven with tons of debris, there is a probability that many of the bodies will remain in their present resting places until mid-summer.

A special received today from Everett says:

"One car at the Wellington side has been excavated and ten persons were found in it alive."

There are great fears entertained for the safety of the brave rescuers who are tunneling through the snow and ice in search of bodies. The warmer weather of the past three days has started the snow melting and there is constantly danger of more avalanches. To add to the horror of the situation ghouls have robbed the bodies of many of the frozen victims.

A force of thirty laborers in the employ of the Great Northern at Wellington are missing and every effort is being made to have met the fate of score of known dead.

Since the blockade occurred the force of workmen has been augmented until now there are from 250 to 300 engaged in the blockade removal and the rebuilding of the wrecked road. The lives of these men are imperiled all the time from threatened slides.

TWO AMERICAN WOMEN HELD IN CORINTO PLOT

MANAGUA, March 4.—With two American women, young and pretty, arrested on the charge of being spies, according to reports here, the Madriz government today announced that George F. Cannon has confessed a plot to assassinate President Madriz. Cannon was arrested at Corinto, at the same time the women are said to have been taken into custody. He is under heavy guard.

When captured, say the government officials, Cannon was preparing to come here and carry out the plot of assassination. He is a cousin of Leroy Cannon, whose association with another American, Groce, brought on the Nicaraguan crisis that drove Zelaya from the presidency into exile.

The broken remnants of the insurgent army today are in full flight to Rivas, it is believed here that a last desperate stand will be made by the rebels to bring about intervention by the United States and force the withdrawal of the Madriz republic in the eastern part of Nicaragua, with a short time. Although the Madriz government retains its grip on the western part of the country and its attack on Managua has been frustrated according to the admissions of the provisional officers at Rivas, the Atlantic coast country is under the domination of General Estrada.

The declaration of secession however, would probably, according to information received here, lead to an immediate expedition of conquest by the Madriz forces under General Vasquez.

It is reported that the provisionals to-day began drawing up papers outlining the new republic for presentation to Washington.

This means the sentences imposed upon operatives in ten days. The men convicted and their sentences are:

RICH FAVORS FOR GUESTS AT ASTOR'S BALL

Bostonians are much interested in the magnificent ball given in New York last evening by Colonel John Jacob Astor, not only because it was so important and unique in itself, but also because of the large number of Bostonians who had family connections or intimate friends there. Among those present at the ball, who are either relatives or intimate friends of our themselves Bostonians, were the Charles Greenoughs, the Joseph Chotes, the Peabody Porters, the Edmund Bayliss, the Winthrop Chanlers, the Quincy Shaws, the Monroe Robinson, Miss Ethel de Keyser, the Misses Heine and Theodore Minturn, the Nicholas Murray Butlers, the James H. Choates and the George Henry Warrens.

Among the many notable features of the ball were the novel and costly favors presented to the guests. Those shown for the men included ribbon sashes marked "Midwinter, 1910"; gilt cigar holders; pigskin jewel cases, pipes, gardenia boutonnieres, desk paters and paper weights, drinking cups, bells, antique brocade watch bows and flashlights.

Parasols Made to Order.

The favors chosen to delight the women were pompadour ribbon scarfs marked "Midwinter, 1910"; gilt Louis XV. baskets of flowers, gilt directoire mirrors, French parasols, oval French escutcheon light screens, Louis XVI. sacra bags, painted Louis XVI. fans, gilt antique stools, framed panels, purses and bridge scores.

The most costly of the women's presents were undoubtedly the French parasols. They had been made to order and were hand-carved from the finest wood, while the silk of which they were composed was an artistic combination of every imaginable color. The scarfs and sashes worn by both the men and women were fringed in silver and gold and were of the most exquisite color combinations. The little bags being carried by the men were kept ringing merrily to the rhythm of the orchestra.

One of the most impressive incidents of the evening was during the presentation of the directoire mirrors to the women. The mirrors were nine feet in length and the handles were of satin wood.

Mirrors Flash Lights.

When seventy-five superbly gowned women were seen, each with a mirror flashing back the lights from the ballroom at all angles, they presented a scene of the most unique and dazzling brilliancy.

While the magnificent dinner and dance were in process at the Astor mansion the long bearded Midwinter Caliph Hall at Sherry's was being participated in by hosts of the New York fashionables and not a few of Colonel Astor's guests were given leave of absence to attend this important function, where among the belles and patrons in charge were charming Mrs. Austen Gray, fordefly Alice Burnham of Boston, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Arthur S. Burden, Mrs. Arthur Iselin and Mrs. John R. Drexel.

And you know the last go is pretty sure to be the best of all. We've striven hard to make it so, at least, because we want to wind this sale up with the biggest list of bargains it is possible to give. Take, as a sample, those nine-cent socks for men. We don't pretend to make a cent on them. They'd sell anywhere at nineteen cents. Those $20 Spring suits for women are another case in point. Their equal will not be found selling a cent under $20.00 elsewhere. The Red Tags give you this lot at $14.97—clean saving of $5.03.

DON'T INVITE RHEUMATISM

By Allowing Your Blood to Become Thin During Cold or Damp Weather.

Every sufferer from rheumatism wants to be cured and to stay cured.

The prospect of the return of the same old rheumatism every year is not attractive to anybody who has gone through one siege. Most treatments aim simply to "keep down" the rheumatic poisons in the blood. The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has proved by hundreds of cures that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out these poisons through the regular channels of excretion, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done the rheumatism is permanently cured and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attacks of rheumatism.

Mr. Robert W. Shoemaker of No. 4120 Ludlow street, Philadelphia Pa., says:

"Some years ago I suffered from a very severe attack of rheumatism which affected the knee joints, thigh and shoulder of my left side. The pain was of a dull throbbing nature, much like a toothache. My knee and shoulder would swell and I could not bear to have anyone touch me so severe was the pain at these points. I suffered for three or four years, and at times was hardly able to attend to my work. My doctor treated me but without affording relief. I also used liniments of all kinds. Finally on the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I was relieved after the first few boxes, and after a few weeks' treatment was cured. Since that time I have never been troubled with rheumatism."

Thin blood, besides inviting rheumatism, means starved nerves, weakened digestion, functional disorders, headaches, possibly neuralgia, sciatica and even partial paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood, repair waste and prevent and check disease. They are for men and women, young and old. They are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. They are never sold by the dozen or hundred.

A helpful booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," giving more information about the remedy will be sent free on request.

GLOVER COURT HEARING WITH THE WIDOW ON THE STAND

Drawn by Artist Moynahan of the Boston American Staff.

This is the only diagram of the court room which has been published. It shows in a graphic way just where each of the participants sit, the arrangement of the court, etc., the waiting crowds without, hoping against hope, to get within. The complete report of the testimony at this extraordinary case is given each night in the 10 O'Clock Edition of the Boston American. As the opportunity of personally hearing the witnesses is infinitesimally small, the vast majority of the public prefers to follow this most interesting case through the American.

MRS. GLOVER REAL PUZZLE FOR LAWYERS

By GEORGE H. GORDON.

If you give several tons of pitchblende, an ink-black crude substance to a competent chemist, one who knows how, he will in several days return to you the most infinitesimal speck of radium the most wonderful metal known to men. Out of this dark, dead, inert, huge mass he will bring a tiny, glowing, almost eternal light. With it science is daily lighting up the dark places.

You might give a mountain of pitchblende to another and although he made mighty effort and worked this way and that, tried every expedient, he would hand you back nothing but the same black, dead mass—just pitchblende.

In a very rough way this is the situation in the Glover will contest as some see it. Until now it is one big, black, unrelieved mystery with lawyers for the contestants, the District Attorney's office, the police, newspaper reporters, the public as a whole looking for a light, a search for the one fine living ray to light the dark places and disclose the secrets in one of the most extraordinary murder mysteries of years.

One gets a glimpse at some of the elements of the problem which baffles the lawyers for the Glover brothers, as day after day they delve into the case in the probate court of Middlesex county. For weeks now the public has had this case presented to it. The lawyers and their detectives have from time to time hinted at great and startling aberrances, have shaken their heads knowingly.

No Sign of Radium Yet.

Mrs. Lillian M. Glover has been openly accused in court of having "caused" the death of her husband.

"But ——" Years and weeks have passed and the case is still pitch dark in its mystery. There may be competent chemists on this job but no sign of radium have they yet shown.

It is just as certain, too, that everybody who knows the case at all believes that the elusive secret is there somewhere. It is difficult to long Mrs. Glover on the witness stand for two hours without feeling that locked in her breast is a tiny light which, disclosed, would illuminate the whole dark case. It is perfectly obvious, however, that she means to keep her own counsel and nothing has yet appeared to indicate that counsel for the opposing side will be able to wrest her secret from her.

Mrs. Glover says she is forty years old. She looks to be all that. She has light hair, the color of straw and lots of it, with some gray showing along the temples. She has high cheek bones, and her complexion under the electric light, was suggestive of the make-up one sees on the stage.

Her eyes are buried in a network of crows feet around which the skin is a pasty white. Her eyes are large and brown. Mrs. Glover was a pretty woman. She has an unusually pleasant, responsive voice with the very smallest suggestion of a French accent.

Eyes Flash Fire.

When she looks straight out at you, her eyes on fire, there seems to be something of an Indian in her. Her face is of that peculiar type common to Indians or Mongolians, square of chin, broad from cheek bone to cheek bone. In profile she is still more Indian in appearance.

As one recalls her French Canadian peasant ancestry and knows how close the relationship between the first French Canadian settlers and the native Indians, a possible strain of Indian blood suggests itself.

Mrs. Glover, from the beginning, has been a hostile witness. Not one speck of information is volunteered. On the most perfunctory queries—and those are very numerous as Lawyer Scott labored to lure her into a trap—she gives monosyllables in reply.

Lawyer Elmore, his fat head leaning over the table, seems to ignore his client. "There is none of that hypnotic influence one sometimes reads about such trials. Mrs. Glover don't need to be hypnotized. She may have gone over the case thoroughly in preparation with Lawyer Elmore but the manner in that of one who is relying on her own wits.

If she has been coached it was a good bit of work and she learned her lesson well.

MRS. VANDERBILT TO GET FRENCH HONORS

NEW YORK, March 4—As a recognition of the charitable donations made by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, it is expected that the French Government will decorate her with the badge of the Order of the Legion of Honor. Mrs. Vanderbilt recently established a hospital in Paris at her own expense, and has done other acts of charity there.

WOMEN LURES IN OPERATIONS OF FARO GANG

The fact that women were used as lures to some of the operations of the Boston "Bunco Syndicate" was confirmed to-day by evidence which it was said would be presented to District Attorney Pelletier in his investigation of the gang alleged to be headed by Martin Walsh and "Diamond Charley" Bostwick.

Another new development of this end of the investigation of the wrecking of the National City Bank of Cambridge was the confession of Jimmy Clancy, the man who steered Dean M. Bissell of Winthrop into the "faro rimmers" hands, that Martin Walsh himself was present at the time when Bristol—who had laid a trap—netted $2,500 of the gang's money and insisted on going to Police Headquarters with John R. Marshall, who produced the money in bulk.

Hitherto, Martin Walsh has not been connected up with Police Headquarters by Bristol or by Marshall. The astute Walsh, who was barred by the trans-Atlantic lines for his participation in the "Dee" Owen crooked card games, was supposed to have kept in the background.

Walsh at Headquarters.

Some wonderment was expressed that Marshall, a comparatively obscure man, should be so influential as to induce the police to advise Bristol to surrender $2,500 of the gang's bait money, and to tell the Winthrop man that his efforts to trap the Syndicate were fruitless—that they could not be prosecuted. Now that Walsh's name comes into it as a third party at Pemberton square, the wonderment ceases.

Bristol told District Attorney Pelletier that Clancy was the man who steered him into the game. Clancy's name is sometimes known as James J. McCarthy. He is a small, grey-haired man of 50, listed in the city directory as an engineer and lives at No. 12 St. Germain street, Back Bay. Here is Clancy's own story of the Bristol transaction:

"It would be nonsense for me to deny that I am not versed in the various gambling devices. For years I have been more or less associated with men who gambled, and at one time I was dealer for a faro house.

"I did not intend that Bristol should be made a victim.

Walsh Went Along.

"He was an old friend of mine, and on being informed that Walsh and Marshall were going to turn the tables on the New York gambling house I thought it would be a good thing for Bristol. Therefore, I told him about it as a friend, never dreaming that a con game was back of the whole business.

"It was Marshall who caused me to become interested. He explained how the house was to lose, and I regarded the scheme as a good one.

"But when Bristol, after gaining possession of Marshall's $2,500 at the South station, announced that he knew the affair was a bunco proposition, I decided not to have anything further to do with it.

"I walked right away from the party, Bristol, Marshall and Walsh jumped into a cab and went to police headquarters to have the matter straightened out. I was quite surprised at the turn the affair had taken, so I went straight home.

"I cannot be regarded as a close acquaintance of some of the men who have been mentioned as members of the faro swindling crowd.

"I could not identify Big Bill Kellner if he was to step before me. Marshall and Walsh I know only casually.

A third development was the open appearance of United States Secret Service men in the investigation of the "Bunco Syndicate." It had been supposed that the Federal Government had no interest in the case except to discover the operations incident to the wrecking of the Cambridge bank. Yesterday, for the first time, the Federal Secret Service men showed an open hand, and disclosed that they had been working on the operations of the bunco co-operative. It was declared broadly that the intention of the United States Department of Justice is to get after the Boston "Bunco Syndicate" as the real cause back of the disclosures of sudden police activity.

Because of the more than five years' operations of the gang while they were swindling Boston men of at least $200,000, it had been supposed that the police could not be induced to act. In fact, there was a general air of disinterestedness at Pemberton Square. Suddenly, however, everybody "on the hill" became active, and to-day's discovery that the Federal Investigators had been quietly at work was declared to be explanatory of the strange awakening of the officials in Pemberton.

Special Agent Frederick Smith of the Department of Justice gave a clew to-day to his visiting District Attorney Pelletier for the first time. What he said is a secret that neither he nor Pelletier will divulge.

Another New Victim.

A new victim also appeared. Andrew F. McDermott, a wealthy real estate owner of Brookline, was reported to-day to have lost $25,000. His son, William F. McDermott, in his absence, has been summoned to see the District Attorney. The son said, in reply to questions to-day:

"My father is in the West just now and will not return for a week or more, and I am not volunteering to tell the story, but if District Attorney Pelletier wishes me, of course, I shall tell him what I know. I have not yet consulted with my attorney, Judge Loginn, and will not talk about the matter until I receive his advice. I shall not tell the newspapers the facts before I do the District Attorney.

"When this story about the faro swindling became public I felt that my name would be drawn into it. I am sorry, but it seems as if one something ought to be done to bring these fellows to justice. Personally I have never had any experience with them, as was my father. He did not break him, however, although the loss was heavy."

Andrew F. McDermott, father of William F. McDermott, is in the real estate business and lives at No. 53 Clifford street, Roxbury. In the list of creditors of William J. Kellner of Ocean Spray, Scituate, where Kellner committed suicide after the alleged faro swindle, and who was petitioned into bankruptcy, he is listed in the United States District Court in Ancient of last year. Mr. McDermott is mentioned among others as follows: "The unsecured creditors were Andrew McDermott, note of liability on note to Chester Berry, cash loaned, balance given and judgment obtained, $1,533.66."

THREE MORE ARRESTS ARE THREATENED IN WRECKED BANK CASE

pilation of the funds of the National City Bank of Cambridge to the amount of $3,000 on December 17, 1909.

Commissioner Hayes, the prisoner being without counsel, entered a plea of not guilty for the young man, who up to this time had not opened his mouth. The commissioner then held Lockhart in $30,000 bail for a hearing next Monday morning.

Indifferent About Bail.

"Can you furnish that bail?" asked the commissioner.

"I don't know anything about it," said Lockhart in an entirely indifferent tone, as though he of all men in the room was the least concerned.

The complaint on which Lockhart was arrested last night and held to-day was sworn out by John P. Fernsler of New York, expert bank examiner and accountant in the employ of the United States Government in Washington. Fernsler has been working on the books of the wrecked bank.

Lockhart was not able to furnish the bail. He was placed for a time in one of the cells in the cage outside the marshal's office. United States District Attorney William H. Garland handled the case for the government to-day.

Lockhart, who was arrested in Chicago, spent the night in a cell in Station 2. At 8.55 to-day he was taken to the Federal building by Assistant United States Marshal Hartley A. Bancroft. He is a comely boyish looking and not especially bright in appearance. He wore a light checked overcoat, black derby hat and black suit.

Lockhart's arrest followed a search of thirteen hours. The belief that two other arrests are to be made in connection with the looting of the Cambridge bank caused large crowds to gather around Station 2 and the Federal building to-day.

Six secret service officials, along with the Cambridge police, are conducting a mysterious search of Cambridge, Lexington and Belmont. They were at work all night. They are at it to-day. A secret service officer South of the Department of Justice at the Cambridge Bank said: "Frequently the secret service men who are looking up the case investigate called at the bank and consulted with the Bank Examiner."

BROOKLINE MAN A $50,000 VICTIM OF SWINDLE GANG

After the publication yesterday in the BOSTON AMERICAN of the story that "Diamond Charley" Bostwick was believed to be one of the leaders of the Boston "Bunco Syndicate," George L. Trueman, a dentist, of No. 11 Everett street, Cambridge, says to-day that a rich Brookline real estate man will testify before District Attorney Pelletier that he was swindled of $50,000 when in the company of "Diamond Charley."

Bostwick tried to get True to part with $5,000, but was unsuccessful. But he did induce the Brookline man to go with a fortune. He lost the $50,000 in ten minutes of play against the house faro game.

Dr. True says that Bostwick was a patient of his and offered to hem him money on some property. He went to Bostwick's last November and talked about borrowing some money on an unmortgaged house. That was building. Bostwick told him about the unfounded rumors of the faro bank who knew of a scheme to make some money. Bostwick tried to get True to "play."

"Sure enough, the next day I got the notice that Bostwick's friend had arrived and for me to go over to Bostwick's office at No. 167 Milk street and meet him. I went.

"I hadn't been in the office more than a few minutes when in walked a man about fifty years old, with swell clothes and dapper appearance. He was introduced as 'the long-lost' chum.

"The dapper dressed fellow opened up a game he had brought with him and took out one of the best faro layouts I ever saw. Then he unfolded the scheme. His employer owned the joint and he was the dealer. He could give the word by a signal and he to what card to play and when to play.

"He needed capital. He was way down, only $1,000 in his possession, and he must have enough to make a killing. Bostwick caught the fever right off. He asked him how much he would need. His friend said we ought to have at least $5,000.

"They agreed that the dealer should put in $1,000, Bostwick another $1,000 and I was to put up the remaining $3,000. I kind of thought I was getting the big end short and I told them so. But the stranger said he was willing to let me have the biggest share of it the first night and he would take his after that when I got the capital.

"I went home and thought the whole thing over, and the more I thought the more the game swayed money to me and the result was that I didn't go.

"But a friend of mine in Brookline did

WOMAN MAY CHANGE MIND, SAYS COURT

ATLANTA, March 4.—A woman has an inalienable right to change her mind, says the Georgia Supreme Court to-day in deciding a suit brought by a lawyer to force Mrs. A. J. Chastain to pay fees in a divorce action. Before the suit was tried Mrs. Chastain became reconciled to her husband and returned to him and refused to pay the fees.

The lawyers argued that the Court says Mrs. Chastain has a right to change her mind and that to force payment would be unjust.

$10,000,000 AS ASTOR ALIMONY

NEW YORK, March 4.—Mrs. Ava Willing Astor was granted a final and absolute decree of divorce from Col. John Jacob Astor in the Supreme Court at White Plains, N. Y., by Justice Mills to-day, following the granting of the interlocutory decree to her a little over three months ago. Mrs. Astor is prohibited from marrying again during her lifetime, but she is permitted to marry again if she chooses and also to assume her maiden name.

It was reported in court that $500,000 a year had been settled on Mrs. Astor, and that $10,000,000 was set aside for her before the papers were signed.

Neither Mrs. Astor nor her husband were in court. She was represented by Hugh Wayne of the law firm of Strong & Cadwalader, and Col. Astor was represented by Lewis Cass Ledyard. The proceedings lasted but a few minutes, the decree was filed in Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Astor being a resident of Dutchess county.

The prompt arrival of the fire apparatus saved the Auburndale Inn from destruction, when an overheated oil stove melted its socket and collapsed, allowing the burning oil to run onto the floor, which was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered. The application of water and the use of chemicals put the fire out.

GIRL ACCUSED BY DEATH NOTE

NEW HAVEN, March 4.—The dying statement of Joe Kwiatkowska that Sophie Kritchman and Joe Mitchell used and murdered him at Naugatuck, near Waterbury, was read in the Superior Court this afternoon as the trial of the pair. Joseph Norkewicz of Naugatuck, who found Kwiatkowska in a dying condition, testified that after he found Kwiatkowska he asked him "Who done you?" Kwiatkowska answered as follows:

He was seen on Friday by Sophie Kritchman and by Joe Mitchell on Saturday. I knew Friday that I was going to die, and so I got a piece of paper and wrote on it, so it would be known, after I was dead.

Attorney Alling then introduced the piece of paper in question, which was found in Kwiatkowska's clothes.

Sophie Kritchman shot me. Sophie Kritchman, it seems I must die at your hands."

The witness said that he took the paper from Kwiatkowska's hands. State Attorney Alling then asked:

"Did Kwiatkowska tell you that he was going to die?"

He did answered Norkewicz.

State Attorney Alling read to the court the statement of Kwiatkowska in which was the following words in substance:

Sophie Kritchman shot me. Sophie Kritchman, it seems I must die at your hands."

CY YOUNG GETS IN FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON

RED SOX, WITH BRIGHT PROSPECTS, ON WAY TO HOT SPRINGS TO TRAIN

A. H. C. Mitchell, Sporting Editor of the Boston American and veteran baseball writer will accompany the Red Sox on their training trip to Hot Springs. He will send daily reports of the doings in the Speedboy's camp.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The Red Sox party were up origins and early today. They had to be at the ground some time from Boston on the 11:20 last night and the sleeping car porter roused them out at 6:30. The band in charge of Manager Donovan took luncheon in the Prince George Hotel, where breakfast was served and then all hands (ninety-seven strong) went to the Twenty-third street ferry and took the boat for the Jersey Central depot where the Baltimore & Ohio train was waiting.

The parlor car occupied by the Red Sox delegation will go right through to Hot Springs so there will be no shifting of baggage at Cincinnati. While the boys will rest a day in Portsmouth, the car will be aldershed and then brought back and hitched on to the Illinois Central train that will take the party from Cincinnati to Hot Springs.

When notes were counted the following men were found in the party: Manager Peter Donovan, Trainer Charlie Green; Pitchers Elmer Steel, Ray Collins, Fred Barberich and Charlie Thompson, Catcher Tommy Madden and the following newspaper men: T. H. Murnane, Herman Nickerson, Paul Walling Shannon, Harry Casey, Wallace Gilbreth, Ed. Burrell, Steve Flannagan, President of the Brockton Club and special correspondent, and the writer. Also there were those fans, Joe Burns of Taunton, Uncle Bill Cahill of East Boston, Pat Sheehan, the boiled dinner king of Atlantic avenue; "Cutie" Madden, Buzzie Appleton and James Dineen of Lawrence.

Although Elmer Steel was known for two years that the Red Sox have travelled south by the B. and O., he sent his trunk to the Penn. Depot this morning. This caused Manager Donovan considerable trouble, and led Perry to remark that somebody plays like this probably accounted for the fact that Elmer went back to the luther league so often.

When the Boston crowd arrived at the Prince George this morning they found Elmer Steele, Barberich and Thompson waiting for them. These three pitchers will be in New York State, Steele is getting his third taste of major league baseball, and if he can overcome some bad pitching habits he ought to stick this time.

Good Trial for Barberich.

Barberich pitched for Hugh Duffy's Providence team last year. Donovan saw him work in several games and thinks highly of him. He will get a thorough trial at Hot Springs and when Donovan gets through with him he will know pretty well whether he is yet ready for fast company.

The practice games of the Red Sox and Cincinnati teams at the Springs will be for blood and all the Boston pitchers will be given a chance to show what they can do.

As for Thompson, he comes from the Scranton team. President Taylor saw him pitch a game last season and was so impressed by his work that he immediately bought him. He had great success in his league and finished with a fine strike out record. It may develop that he is not yet ripe for fast company, in which case the Boston club will farm him out and try his again next Spring, as they are now doing with Steele and Ehman.

What Donovan Says.

"Well, I am glad to get started" said Manager Donovan. "I look forward to some fine practices at Hot Springs. Mr. Taylor has gathered a fine team of ball players and with any kind of luck we ought to finish it out with the leaders all the way. It is up to me to see that the men are in first-class condition by the time the championship season begins, and I will do all in my power to make the training period count in every way.

"I believe we will get lots of fine practice in our games with the Cincinnati Reds. Griffith will be just as anxious to beat us as we will be to beat him. The two teams will develop at about the same pace, so that by the time we are ready to leave the Springs we ought to be in great shape.

"I haven't seen Gilt to talk over playing games and will have to wait until we get to Hot Springs before I can say how the two teams will divide the practice hours. Probably we will both take morning and afternoon practices at different hours for the first week or two and then we will both be ready for practice games.

"As far as I am concerned, I believe in playing together almost as soon as possible. I don't know how Grit will feel about this, but if he wants to start right in I am willing, though. Of course, the men will be sort of tired and will not be asked to take any chances. The pitchers, too, will only toss the ball up at first.

STAGG GIVING FORWARD PASS GOOD TRYOUT

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 4.—That the forward pass will play an important part in Coach Stagg's "new style" football program was learned when he smashed his program for a week in advance. Especial stress is laid upon plays developing around this feature, and Stagg expects to try every possible formation involving the forward pass.

The first week consisted of some scrimmage and formation work, in which Stagg tried several of his experiments.

Owing suggestions must be used for consideration. Seven men will always be kept on the line of scrimmage, allowing shifting of men in the back field or line in any formation. The first man receiving the ball will be allowed to run with it. Ball may be passed from centre to any member of the backfield. Any member receiving the ball on the man carrying the ball will be eligible. The forward pass shall be allowed over any part of the line of scrimmage.

An illustration used the quarter run to drive ball, make dash toward the end, then turn and toss the ball across the line of scrimmage, passing it only to the ends. Ball always to be in play when forward pass is made.

No man shall be allowed to make a tackle without keeping one foot on the ground. This will eliminate the dangerous flying tackle. Ends when going down under a punt are not to be checked by the body of an opposing player. This is intended to eliminate perhaps the most dangerous feature of the present game. No interference by opposing player cannot stop any end for a ten-ing up punts by plunging into the runner.

Stagg plans to divide the game into four parts with halves of fifteen minutes length and five minutes intermission.

The proposed rules governing the forward pass were used frequently and provided much pendine play. Stagg is well satisfied with the progress already made.

Boxing Bouts

WILKESBARRE, March 4.—Jack Reagor was knocked out in the second round by Tom Herring.

BALTIMORE, March 4.—In a gruelling mill of fifteen rounds Young Britt of this city defeated Young Terris of Philadelphia before the Eureka A. C. Britt was the aggressor from the start, but the Quaker City lad gave him a hard run.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Willie Beecher of the East Side by his aggressive style defeated Young Goldman, another East Side celebrity, in the fifth round of the Longacre A. A. Beecher scored the only knock-down of the affair in the fourth round.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 4.—Young Nichols received a severe thrashing at the hands of Leo Flinn before the Lancaster A. C., but he stayed the six rounds and showed plenty of fight.

STRAIGHT DOPE

FOR SPORT FANS

IT LOOKS TO ME LIKE THE YOUNG Men's Social and Athletic Club of Brockton has arranged a pretty good card for tonight. Eddie Murphy of South Boston is to meet Young Donohue of Roxbury in the final bout of 12 rounds. Neither boy has boxed for some time, but as they have had matches in sight they will be in pretty good trim. Donohue's last appearance was a horrible one in the Armory A. A., when he double-crossed found Young Laughrey. Murphy has made two trips to New York recently to fight Young Otto, but the latter has flunked each time, in addition to the Gunn bout, several good preliminaries have been arranged, and the Boston sports think so much of the show that a big crowd of them are going up to see it.

A. H. S., QUINCY, MASS.—THE FIGHT between Ian Hague and Sam Langford in London on May 24, 1909, was billed for the championship of England. Langford knocked Hague out in four rounds and all the sporting papers of England printed his pictures and hailed him as champion of England, but as champion of the world. This latter was based on Johnson flunking out of a match with Langford at the National Club, and thereby forfeiting his title. According to the English custom the title remains in England unless it is borne by an Englishman, so a supposed draw in that case with Sam is not the title holder. Hague's last fight before meeting Langford was with Gunner Moir, knocking him out in one round. According to the records, Hague never met Burns, so you're wrong there. McGovern weighed 124 pounds when he won the featherweight championship.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOLLOWER, CAMbridge.—I have no time on the doctors who daily with crooked props. You can buy braces at most any store where artificial limbs are sold. The only way I know to help your ailment is not to be born on the bias. They say when you join the church you have to be born again. You might try that.

J. G., CAMBRIDGE.—GANS AND NELson fought three times: 42 rounds, 12 rounds, and 21 rounds. Gans won on a foul the first time. The other two bouts ended in Gans being knocked out.

A LAWRENCE READER.—JIM DRISCOLL is featherweight champion of England, the weight there being 126 pounds. Freddy Welsh is lightweight champion of England, the weight being 135 pounds.

B. A READER, WORCESTER, MASS.—Fred Lake was the manager of the Red Sox two or three months at the end of the season of 1908, and all of the season of 1909.

SEVERAL DAYS AGO SOME ONE asked me how the game of Newmarket was played. I didn't know. Now another reader of this column comes along with info, which follows:

Straight Dope, Boston American:

This is the game of Newmarket as I have always seen it played. Use the back of a domestic, queen of spades, jack of hearts. Toss four cards and placed in the centre of the table spread out. Those or more players. Each player is to deal from three to five players. The whole of the cards to be dealt, from 20 to 25 cards to each player. Left of table, no one card or dividual according to amount. Player next to dealer pays first, the next pays two, and so on, being as if I was 1. I would play the ace of spades then the 2 of spades, and so on until you come to a card of the suit of spades in centre of table. Not the 2 of spades, but the card of spades that you played in centre of game. After the ace of spades is played, the next card is in the suit of hearts, and so on until you come to a card of the same suit as the top card spade, the lowest of any suit of the four suits. Any player can play a card of the same suit as the top card of any other player's hand. If no chips to be taken off cards in centre of table until the hand is played out. Any player not playing a card called for by the player to his left pays a chip. Hope this will explain the game.

Respectfully,

SIDNEY W. REA,

No. 208 Pleasant street, Natick, Mass.

JOSEPH A. IVY, MALDEN, MASS.—You should register your champion, Johnnie Thiss, with J. Frank Feeny, Cambridge, Mass., if you want him to bat as an amateur.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear sir.—We have a boy in Manchester who can lick anything like Sheehy, and is now looking for a match. His name is Young McDonough. If you want to see him box, write to Jack Hall, Manchester, N. H., and tell him that McDonough can lick the stuffing out of Sheehy. Yours truly,

A. A. C.

Manchester, N. H.

Young McDonough is a real good boy. I've seen him box several times. I don't think, however, he has any license to go against Eddie Sheehy for two reasons. Eddie has too much weight on him and is too good a fighter for your boy.

J. E. BURDEN, WINTHROP, MASS.—The name of the young man who made the announcements you speak of at the American A. C. is James Winston.

L. J. REDMOND, NO. 82 OTIS STREET, Cambridge.—James J. Jeffries showed at the Armory on December 2 of last year. He has not been in Boston since that night.

NEWARK NINE TO GET BIG BONUS TO WIN

NEWARK, N. J., March 4.—By landing the championship of the Eastern League race this season, the members of the Newark Indians will have the pleasure of dividing $5,000, if the plans of a number of well-known residents of the city are carried out. The matter has been put up to Manager Joe McGinnity by some members of the Board of Trade, who are ardent baseball fans.

MATHEWSON HOLDS GIANTS IN CHECK

MARLIN, Tex., March 4.—The veteran members of the Giants went through another whirlwind practice but despite heavy hitting against curve balls they were unable to defeat the "Yaps," led by Christy Mathewson. After another afternoon of fighting McGraw called the game off. At this time the score was tied, 5 to 5.

Mathewson cut loose with his arm for the first time. Robinson had the full string of pitchers working on curve balls and some of them are showing up well.

Women Here Practical, Says English Suffragist

Miss Ethel Arnold of London, who is of good sense, of high ideals, and they are visiting in Boston this week and making addresses on woman suffrage, has some very decided views on women's rights; she is well versed in politics, and well used to speaking before large audiences. It would be impossible not to be impressed with her womanly grace and dignity, her mastery of the art of oratory and her remarkable mental powers. She is a woman of well-informed ideas and strong convictions.

"The men of America have one stock argument against woman suffrage," she said, "and it is to the effect that if the women of this Republic were given the ballot, it would simply increase the ignorant vote and make things worse than they already are. But I say that the danger to a nation is not from the ignorant masses, either male or female, but from the enlightened but unscrupulous leaders of the masses—the bosses. Your men folk say they believe in democracy, but they act as if they believed in bossdom and corrupt elections, unscrupulous men who make their living and their fortunes by misguiding the masses.

"Your men are so afraid of 'political government'. They are so afraid of being governed by women! They don't know, of course, that they are about as near having 'political government' as is possible without being openly governed by women. While they are fearing this same 'political government' and are lost in contemplation of their own superiority and feeling comfortable about it, the women are silently, surely irresistibly forging ahead and surpassing men marvelously. One of these days the men will wake up to this fact, and will see that, while it is true, their old fear of women in all the higher walks of life was unfounded, only a bugaboo of their own creation.

Women Fast Passing Men.

"For what are the facts? American women are, as a body, getting better educated than are the men. Do they not remain in school longer, and are not more and more of them getting higher education? Are they not doing splendid work side by side with the men in all of the colleges? American women are becoming economically free, and that is most significant. They live healthy lives; there is an ever-increasing desire on their parts to be healthy and keep healthy. They do not smoke, they do not drink, they do not spend their money in gambling and betting and dissipation. They do put aside themselves. They are women of character, thoroughly intelligent, and they are fast advancing all of the time, and so rapidly that is there any menace to society in these things—intelligence, education, trained minds, trained hands, healthy bodies, good habits, cleanliness, economic freedom, good sense, high ideals?

"People tell you that 'So-and-So in history, great minds, wise men, said this and that about woman's place in the world, her function in life. Quotations from past ages and generations are beside the mark. And as for what the Creator intended woman do on earth, I do not pretend to know. I have knowledge of the Creator's express purpose for woman as distinguished from His wish for man with my friends, the anti-suffragists, to settle. They are good at that sort of thing.

Driven to Be Practical.

"All I know is that women are here in the midst of economic conditions far from ideal, with great economic necessity brought to bear on them, and they are driven to work out their own place in the world from present, practical conditions. You will hear howls of pious horror on every hand and many harkings back to what has been but the present is what we are otherwise with, and the future.

"If you want a good argument against those who oppose woman suffrage in theory, point to those four glorious states in their own Union where women have been voting equally with men for many years, and call attention to the fact that no legislature has seen fit to repeal the rights granted to women. Point to New Zealand, Australia, the Isle of Man, Finland and all of the countries where women do vote.

"In women vote to any extent in these countries? Have they proved that the majority of women wanted to vote when they understood it? Have they proved that they were an element of good in the government and have they done good work? Is their work notorious for all those things your men folk fear for your government? If they would have the vote to-morrow?

English Women Voters Win Credit.

"Well, turn to England, where women vote on equal terms with men on every thing but members of Parliament. Fully 50 per cent. of the women who are qualified to vote go to the polls and cast intelligent votes. Women hold a few political offices in England and they acquit themselves with credit. I have in mind the mayoress of either Woodstock or Bletchley and kept in office by men and women alike if they did not serve the city well? As for whether women improve in government by participating in it let me say that women are human beings and not perfect, but that there is overwhelming evidence that their influence in public life has been good."

Talk About His Business and You'll Entertain Man

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

THE very cleverest woman I know called on me last week and chanced to pick up from my desk a book on the 'Art of Conversation.' She glanced through it impatiently.

"I can tell you more about the real Art of Conversation' in six minutes," she said, "than this book can in 200 pages."

"That book," I laughed, "was a Christmas present. Rather bal taste, I thought, though no doubt I need it. However, as I haven't time for the 200 pages I'll take your six-minute version."

"It can be condensed in one sentence: Talk to men about their work."

"Talk to me about their work?' I repeated vaguely.

"The object of conversation is to interest, isn't it?" she went on. "And women care only to interest men—and men are always interested in their work!

"I could write an article on that subject which would be worth all the mandlin advice on 'The Art of Conversation,' 'How to Please,' 'How to Attract,' etc., that was ever written.

The Expert's First Lesson

"My first lesson was long ago at a dinner party. I had very little small talk, and I was placed next to a man who had less. We struggled through the oysters and soup to the most strained inanities.

"Finally in desperation I asked limitly: 'What is your work—your profession?' (I bring it about more adroitly now.) He was a bridge builder. I knew nothing of bridges, but he knew a great deal and seemed willing to enlighten me. After that we had a most interesting evening.

"A few days later I met a mining engineer, who had even less small talk than the bridge builder. The same method worked equally well. Then my knowledge of mines was most limited; now I could write a pretty fair mining prospectus. I've met many mining engineers since.

"As a matter of fact," she laughed, "the varied information I have accumulated in this way is astonishing. I have a real working knowledge of stocks, bonds, patents, real estate, railroads, insurance and countless other things.

"I rarely meet a man now whose business I cannot discuss with ease. But I never make the mistake of over-asserting my knowledge. The man should feel that he is discussing a matter on which he is an authority. That is important. My role is always that of an interested and usually well-informed listener.

How She Flatters Men

"Often I can show my knowledge of the subject and at the same time most adroitly flatter the man by putting my information in the guise of questions. Such as:

"'Is it true, Mr. Robinson, that the X & Z Railroad has bought all the A & B stock?'

"Having been assured by an official of the X & Z road that it had, I am reasonably sure that it is true. But Mr. Robinson is es pleased to be able to answer the question as I am to ask it.

"It is also effective—but my six minutes are up!"

"You perfectly wonderful woman," I laughed, "I am speechless with envy and admiration. Do you suppose I could——"

"Of course, you can. Any woman can. Try it. You will interest the man, interest yourself—and gather enough information to compile an almanac!"

The Weather

By JAMES RAVENSCROFT

O, I never wonder whether
Twill be fair or stormy weather,
Nor do I ever care to scan
The forecast or the skies.
For to me mood is immortal
Are all merely beneficial—
The weather I take note of
Is in Mabel's face and eyes.

When dear Mabel's mood is tender
More of such may heaven send her,
And she sweetly smiles upon me
As only she can smile.
Then the dreariest day is pleasant,
For that smile is ever present,
Its sunny scintillations
With delight my hours beguile.

But when Mabel's mood is stormy
And frowns only she has for me,
And she makes me feel most wretched,
As only Mabel can,
Then sunshine is nothing to me,
Then the fairest skies seem gloomy,
And all the day is but a gray
And disappointing span.

Two Smart Dancing Events For Society Buds To-night

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

That the younger element of smart society insists upon dancing even in Lent is proven by the fact that to-night there are two smart terpsichorean events on the smart set schedule, one is the dance for the sub-buds and the sophomores and juniors of Harvard, the last in the series which the mothers of the girls who are to be presented next season have been giving at the Tuileries.

The patronesses for these affairs, which have been such a delight to our prospective buds, are Mrs. F. Minot Weld, Mrs. Philip Dexter Sallonstall, Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell and Mrs. John Lowell, all of whom are preparing to present their daughters next Winter.

The theme is the dance which Mrs. Robert S. Bradley is giving at her luxurious Westfield avenue home for her pretty daughter, Miss Leslie Bradley.

Mrs. John F. Perry has issued invitations for an "at home" which she is to give next Monday at her apartment in the Fenway.

The best way to carry Ashes is in a Hod!

Crawford Ranges

Have an Ash Hod in the base into which all the ashes fall far below the fire. They can't bank against the grates and warp them, and they can be emptied easily without spilling.

The Coal Hod is alongside the Ash Hod—out of the way. This feature is a wonderful labor and trouble saver and is patented.

Another trouble-saver of the Crawford is the patented Single Damper. One motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check" —the range does the rest. No damper mistakes.

The Oven has cup-joint heat flues that heat it alike in all parts.

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circular.

YEARLY SCHOOL WASTE $500,000 SAYS EDUCATOR

That Boston is wasting $500,000 a year in the conduct of the city's school system is the statement of a prominent educator, who discussed the situation with the understanding that his name not appear.

"The trouble has been," he said, "that no one of us has felt like being the first to lead in talk of this sort, and I have not got my courage yet to the point where I am willing to disclose my name. The waste is going on, though, and it is time that some serious investigation was undertaken.

"I do not think there is any one of us who is inclined to lay the burden of responsibility on the shoulders of Superintendent Brooks. He is an exceptionally able man. He has been the victim of conditions as much as anyone else, but fads and fancies have been creeping in, with the result that money out of proportion to the results is being expended.

"Running schools is as much a business proposition as anything else, and no director has a right to allow an increase in the ratio of cost to go beyond the actual returns being made. That ratio has been lost sight of at the present time.

"The system is too heavy. It was the criticism of one man who has given the best of his life to educational work in Boston. 'We have a superintendent, assistant superintendents and another expensive corps of supervisors. The men overdo. It is impossible that they should do otherwise. Then there are the corps of specialists who have been slowly added to the school force in a sense of necessity. It is small wonder there has not been any money for increases in the pay of the teachers. The only wonder is, we have been able to hold on to pay without reductions.'

An equally important suggestion contributed was that the present arrangements regarding manual training, cooking and sewing be revamped.

"You must remember," said the man who took up this phase, "that the elementary school pupil, during an entire school period, only gets eighty hours of instruction.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

BULLS BUSY WITH COPPERS

STATE STREET, March 4.—Copper stocks led in the Wall Street stock market this forenoon and bullish tips are being spread on Amalgamated and other leading issues. Amalgamated rose over two points from last night's closing, Anaconda about a point and Utah Copper two points.

Locally there was good response, particularly in the new Lake stocks. Lake Copper advanced 1¼ points. The greatest strength was in Indiana, which sprints 3¼ points. North Lake and North Butte were also strong and active. U. S. Smelting was well bought and rose about a point. Shoe Machinery and American Tobacco were also buoyant. Bohemia was strong on the curb.

Wall Street prices opened nervous, and little was doing in the railroad issues. London bids for American stocks showed some improvement, particularly Anaconda. The buoyancy in the metal market is reflected in the shares although considerable of the late rise of copper issues have been for the account.

Yesterday's decline was of short duration and was based on the close proximity of the Philadelphia Inter-Ocean case. It was said of the Baltimore & Ohio traffic men's situation. Erie & O. stock was erratic in the dull at about yesterday's low level. Ice rose 1¾ points this forenoon and Steel common a point. Reading rose about a point and Union Pacific ½.

Nearly 100,000 shares of Nevada Consolidated stock have been deposited in exchange for Utah. As soon as this exchange is formally effected the Utah Treasury will have plenty of Nevada Consolidated stock with which to cool any feverish desire that non-assenting stock holders may display for an advance.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The market is broadening constantly and transactions are on a more generous scale than they were. Sentiment in the Street shows great improvement and the public is much more in evidence.

$ $ $

A good volume of outside buying is noted, and inquiries are coming into the Street from those who have been waiting for the secondary decline.

$ $ $

The only feature of the market now that excites apprehension is the falling away of the short interest, which has been greatly reduced. The borrowing demand has been reduced to a minimum, and all investigations having developed that the inquiry is very small in comparison with what it has been.

$ $ $

In the last sixty days the Steel Trust has increased the number of its shareholders at the rate of almost 1,000 a day. Large increases have been made also by the Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and other standard corporations. These facts indicate confidence on the part of the public in the "Street" situation. Brokerage loans have been reduced to a minimum. The volume of stocks held on margin is usually small for this time of the year.

$ $ $

While, of course, nobody believes that the Supreme Court has let the public know its Tobacco case decision in advance, the records of the various Justices are well known on this point in question. The highest legal authorities have been engaged to make an abstract of these decisions and adjust them to the Tobacco case. The result of what might be called a scientific speculation in Supreme Court decisions is that the Tobacco Trust will win by a vote of six to three. Directors of the Tobacco Trust say that they do not care how the court decides the case, as they know what they own and they do not see what anybody can do against it, even if they are ordered to go into liquidation.

COPPER STOCKS BOOST MARKET

NEW YORK, March 4.—Wall Street purchased copper stocks freely to-day and as a result the entire market became strong and gains averaging a point were recorded in the standard issues. Trading was most active in Amalgamated copper, which rose 1⅝ points. A liberal amount of business was done in Anaconda, Utah Copper and Smelters.

Strength of the copper shares is due to reported improvement in the copper metal market. Also crossed 45 on moderately large transactions. The advance of Steel is due to the fact that orders now being received by a trust are surprising even the managers. Another factor making for strength in the steel shares is that the Western railroads are coming into the market on a heavy scale for equipment.

An advance of a point was recorded in Reading and Wall street was puzzled by the announcements by the company that Baltimore would be closed to-day and to-morrow. Earnings of the company for January were very favorable. Other stocks to show strength were Atchison, New York Central and Southern Pacific.

American shares were irregular in London. Attention is being monopolized in London by a bull movement in rubber shares and also by the Rhodesian group on the curb profit taking developed in Goldfield. Consolidated that figured in a fractional decline. Copper shares were firm but active.

$7,500,000 IN NEW LEATHER CONCERN

WILMINGTON, Del., March 4.—A charter was issued at Dover to the F. Blumenthal Company, morocco manufacturers, with a capital of $7,500,000. The incorporators are John R. MacKey and Edwin D. Bechtel, New York, and John B. Platt, Wilmington. The concern, which is authorized to engage in a general leather manufacturing business, has large plants here and in other cities. New York capital is behind the enterprise.

"SHUT UP, DESTINN"; BUT 'TWAS KALISCH

NEW YORK, March 4.—Emmy Destinn, the opera singer, has apartments at the Astonia.

Bertha Kalisch, the actress, has apartments two floors above Miss Destinn.

Miss Kalisch used to sing in opera. She sang a full-throated song in her apartments.

A third Astonia tenant stuck her head out of the window and shouted:

"Destinn, shut up!"

And that's why Destinn seemed somewhat sad to-day.

NAVY TRIAL FOR FAKE CONFESSION

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 4.—The court martial of James E. Hall, a sailor who got a dishonorable discharge from the navy by making a fake confession that he murdered Anna Schaffer in Rochester, N. Y., began here to-day. Hall's attorneys declare that the government has no right to try him, as he was discharged from the government service. The court ruled that day that where a discharge was obtained through fraud it had no effect and proceeded to try Hall.

4 CARDINALS ARE TO MEET IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 4.—At a meeting of the consulters of the archdiocese of New York at the archiepiscopal residence on Archbishop Farley's No. 452 Madison avenue, it was decided to postpone the celebration of the centenary of the birth of Cardinal McCloskey, which falls on March 20, until next October. This was decided upon at Archbishop Farley's suggestion.

Two reasons for the postponement were stated. The first was that St. Patrick's cathedral could be consecrated in the same line, and the other that dignitaries of the Roman Catholic Church, including four cardinals, might be enabled to attend.

To Cardinal McCloskey more than any other one man was the building of St. Patrick's Cathedral due. Archbishop Hughes secured the ground and laid the corner stone, but it was America's first Cardinal and New York's only Cardinal that fathered the project until the great marble edifice at Fifth avenue and Fiftieth street was a reality. Both the Archbishop and Mgr. Michael J. Lavalle, the rector, thought it fitting to combine the ceremonies.

Three of the four members of the Sacred College who may be required in New York next October are Cardinal Vincent Vannutelli of Rome, Cardinal Logue and Cardinal Gibbons. The fourth probably will be another Italian prelate. It is also expected that Archbishop Ireland, Archbishop, the Apostolic delegate at Washington, will be present, together with many Archbishops and bishops from both sides of the ocean.

HOW TO SAVE ON YOUR Table—Splendid new recipes by Mme. Fetrazzini will show the housewife who reads the SUNDAY AMERICAN what to do with the left-overs.

Said the Wise Old Brown Pig: "What's the Use of Flowers, and Such Trash?"

Says the Wise Old Business Man: "What's the Use of Higher Education, and Such Trash?"

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Examiner

A wise brown pig—at about the eating hour—heard footsteps. With eager squeals and grunts, he lifted up his heavy body, put his forepaws on the edge of the pig-sty, and beheld not the messenger expected, but the farmer's daughter walking toward him, her arms full of flowers.

Disgusted, he dropped back into the mire, in emphatic pig language expressing his contempt for flowers and such trash.

Another step was heard, this time the heavy tread of the pig's best friend. A large pail was balanced on the edge of the sty, the swill was poured into the trough. The brown pig's front feet and nose were instantly buried in bliss, and in pig language these thoughts were framed:

"There is nothing, after all, of any importance in the world but a good sty, a good trough and good swill. AT REGULAR HOURS. How can they waste room in the garden growing flowers, and why does anybody waste time picking them?"

We offer this brown pig story to the prosperous Chicago business man who recently published a book to prove that money spent in higher education is wasted.

As we do not mention the name of the brown pig, we shall also, in great kindness, leave out the name of the Chicago multi-millionaire manufacturer.

The Chicago man in his book says:

"The college men talk as though they knew all about every other man's business, and that they could manage affairs better than the business men themselves.

"College professors and teachers are prepared to give advice on all subjects. As $2,000-a-year teachers, they tell us how to turn out $5,000 and $10,000-a-year business men. Isn't it a bit strange that it never has occurred to these smart college fellows to go into business for themselves? Why draw a small salary for telling young men how to draw big salaries if you are capable of drawing the big salary yourself?"

It would perhaps be hard for the Chicago pig-man to understand that men of different stripe would rather teach the young, rather GIVE knowledge to the future generation, than use their energies trying to GET money for themselves.

That nice old brown pig in the sty would find it hard to believe that the skylark rising above him, singing a song to make others happy, would refuse to get down in the trough and share the swill—if it had the chance.

The big Chicago merchant and manufacturer, with his millions, has considerable contempt for the $2,000-a-year teacher. Just such contempt as the pig feels for the lark.

The pig-man may possibly have heard of Newton, who formulated the law of gravitation, discovered differential calculus and gave other knowledge to the world.

Newton got on with less than $2,000 a year while he was doing his important work—and he wouldn't have taken all the money ever made to GIVE UP that work.

The millionaire who thinks that education is a mistake says also:

"I believe that I have shown clearly that higher schooling does not make either brains or ability. And as these are the only things that count in any of life's activities, what use can we have for the higher schools?"

The pig-man is right in saying that "schooling does not make either brains or ability." But schooling DOES DEVELOP BRAINS AND ABILITY.

Training does not give speed to a racehorse, but only training can DEVELOP speed.

The pig-man tells us that "brains and ability are the only things that count." It would be interesting to get HIS definition of brains and ability.

Probably he would tell us that BRAIN consists in the power to GET money, and ABILITY in the power to HOLD on to it.

The University of Chicago and the entire country are honored by the reputation and achievements of Professor Michelson. Professor Michelson's work was recently rewarded with the Nobel prize.

Our literary pig-man goes out of his way to criticise Professor Michelson, whose work he says is "of no value."

Professor Michelson includes in his noble scientific work a most marvellous achievement in measuring the speed of light. The brown pig would say: "What do I care how fast the sunlight travels, as long as it finally gets here and warms the bristles on my back?"

The pig-man says, of course, "Who cares about the speed of light, or whether the sun is ninety-four or ninety-six millions of miles away from this earth? All nonsense wasting time and money measuring such things."

The pig-man, despising knowledge and condemning Professor Michelson as one who will not be REMEMBERED or admired in future, reminds us of the dignitaries in the old Dutch synagogue when they expelled the great thinker Spinoza from their congregation.

They cursed him most solemnly and picturesquely—it would make even a brown pig shiver to read that curse.

And after they had cursed Spinoza as thoroughly as they knew how they decided that he should be ABBSOLUTELY FORGOTTEN among men; that his name should never be mentioned, and that succeeding generations should never hear of him.

As it turns out, the gentlemen who DID the cursing and who decided that Spinoza should be forgotten are only remembered themselves because they happened to be included among the human monkeys that figured in Spinoza's life.

Our pig-man says that the higher education costs this country at least one hundred million dollars, and that "this enormous sum is literally thrown away, much to the injury of the country and its people."

Poor, gentle pig-man, do appreciate our kindness in concealing your name. Try to remember that this world is really intended to be, in time, the home of human beings with whom you could have NOTHING in common.

Try to realize that one single new THOUGHT added to the intellectual wealth of humanity is infinitely more important than all your money and all your checks and all your poor little pig theories.

You may think that a city is perfect where it has got in its sewers, its hospitals, its jails, its banks and counting-houses.

But others do not think so. The parks, the beautiful buildings, also play their part in the life of a city—strange as that may appear to you.

And in the life of humanity, as of the individual human being, it is not only the money-getting power, the pig power to acquire and digest swill, that is worth while.

In the head there dwells a spirit, a soul. To that spirit and soul, knowledge, thought, NEW TRUTHS, EVEN WITHOUT CASH VALUE, infinitely exceed in worth all the material wealth that the world has seen.

Even you, poor, money-earning pig-man, although you don't in the least suspect it, have in you a flicker, a faint little something ALMOST human that would respond to truth and intellectual enthusiasm if you could be reached.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Ma is all the time having club women up to the house, last nite she had sum more of them. & Pa dident like it a bit. The naim of the new club is the Singel Sisters, every one of them has took a oath not to get married enny Ma, & she wishes she cud talk the saim oath only it is too late.

Well, girls, sed Pa, I am glad to see you all in my cozy littel hoam. How are all yare folks?

Go shed & enjoy yourself, if you want to, & play Spin the Platter or Who's got the Button, and let me go into the library.

You cant go in the library, sed Ma, you must stay here & help me intertain my gurl frends.

Gurl frends is good, sed Pa. I dount think any one of you has been a gurl since the yeer Harrison was first elected to the White House chair. Go hoam, sed Pa, and have a boty sleep, you all need one, beings knows.

We are not going hoam, sed one of the ladies, we caim here tonite to diskuss how we can git the privilege of the ballot. We wish to fern how we can vote.

That is the softest thing in the world, sed Pa. If I tell you, will you all promise to go hoam? Well, then, this is the way to vote: Go un to the polling place & talk a ballot in yure right hand & a pencil in yure left hand, if you are left handed. Then walk a cross opposite the name of the man that is trying to be the mayor. Nothing eod be simpler, sed Pa. Do you git it.

We do not relish sure conversation, sed one of the ladies. Where & how was I born.

You brought up, that you speek to ladies in such a manner.

I was as well brought up as any of you old hens, sed Pa.

We are not old hens, sed one of the ladies, we are Singel Sisters. I shud say yod are, sed Pa, & it serves you right that you are singel. My head runs cold in my veins. Pa sed, wen I think that maybe sum poor man may becum a husband of one of you.

The ladies dident like Pa at all, & wen one of them got up & began to reesite a poem which she had rote, Pa had the hee cups, he can get the hee-cups any time he wants to. It is a trick that he larned in skool. This is the poem that the lady reesited:

Too long, too long in bondage we have been.
Our chains is rusty & our teers fall fast.
We cannot vote. We cannot nominate.
Oh, tell us, why shud men folks dominate?

I know you rote that sed Pa to the lady with had reesited the poem. The minute you got up & showed that face of yores, I knew that yours was the master mind that dashed off that there gem. By the way, girls, sed Pa, did you ever catch that poem entitled Oh Mother, Wat is Frightful? This is how it goes:

A brave yung soljer marched away.
The hour it was the break of day,
& he kept his powder dry.
The Red Men charged but the frends at him,
His smile grew steddily more grim.
Oh, mother, wat is frightful?

Then Pa began to yawn & he yawned so hard that all of the Singel Sisters went hoam.

Supplementary Senses

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

One of the greatest marvels of our age of marvels is the way in which science is supplementing human senses until we begin to see some things as only the gods have seen them hitherto. Only we must not think that even yet we can see all that they see. But we are getting into the secrets of radiant energy so deep that the world and the heavens present themselves to us in aspects that our predecessors of the proud nineteenth century did not even dream of.

With the supplementary senses that scientific photography furnishes to us we can run up and down the immense gamut of the spectrum away beyond the limits where direct vision ceases.

Nature has hidden these things from us, and given us no means of discovering them except by the exercise of brains.

Astronomers now take light to pieces and handle its parts almost as they please. They choose the kind of rays they will see by just what use the subject. Thus they have looked deep into the mechanism of the sun, and have discovered the existence of layer upon layer in its fiery atmosphere of which a few years ago we were absolutely ignorant.

How the old inquisitors who tortured men for impiously inquiring into the secrets of nature by the aid of the plain senses alone would stand aghast if they could revisit the earth and see us inventing new senses in order to penetrate deeper into those secrets.

Take the marvellous new researches of Professor R. W. Wood on photography with the infra-red and ultra-violet rays, and imagine the sensations of those who persecuted Roger Bacon if they could be confronted with these amazing revelations of things that no man since the days of Adam has ever before beheld.

The face of nature, photographed with the infra-red rays seems transformed into a vision from fairyland. It shows features that even the imagination could not have foreseen in its wildest dreams. It becomes a world without the shadows we know, but it has other shadows of its own.

And then the experimenter goes straight to the other end of the spectrum, and using a scientific eye of glass coated with an opaque film of silver, makes photographs with ultra-violet rays that reveal other things and other aspects of nature of which we have hitherto been profoundly ignorant.

Already, with this supplementary eye, which sees with rays that the natural eye knows not, he has discovered strange things on the moon, so suggestive that he has hopes of now clearing up some of the greatest mysteries of the lunar world.

When all our telescopes shall see with the forbidden rays—the rays that apparently were not intended for human use—the wonders of astronomy, and with it the wonders of life, may become so vast that humanity will enter upon a new age in which the intellect will assert its power as it never yet has done.
